Why was the paper so late this week? Well, there are several reasons: first that "Liberty Day" half holiday, Wednesday, then Thursday evening the writer, (your humble servant, W.J.S.) was operating our Intertype machine and thought he could improve on one of the parts, he did, to the extent that it took a Chicago expert two hours to get it in running order again. This brings our little tale up to Friday noon, well, since then we have been working like the deuce to "get out the issue." Seriously, don't you think we have been running rather a "newsy" newspaper lately?

Miss Clara Staley of Riverside, was a Sunday guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Staley.

While Mr. Geo. Yender was attending church at Naperville Sunday evening his Ford was stolen. The blankets which were left in the machine, were later found strewn along the highway, but the machine has not yet been located.

Lisle school children enjoyed a half-holiday Wednesday on account of the universal celebration of "Liberty Day."

CASS NOTES

Mr. Robert Chilvers of Riverside and brother Charles of Denver, Colo., called on Jesse Oldfield, Sr., Saturday.

While feeding a silage cutter at the Horace Shaw farm, Chauncey Smart got caught by the knives and had one of his fingers crushed. Mrs. Hattie Coppich took him to Lemont where Dr. Ludwig dressed the hand and then took him to a hospital at Joliet where the finger was amputated.

The Chas. Oldfield family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Breitweiser at Barber's Corners.

Hunters are making life miserable for the farmers around Cass every Sunday lately. One would think it was the lads in France "going over the top," the way they rush over the farms.

Mr. and Mrs. Setzer, Mrs. Jerome Smart and daughter, Claire, will be week end visitors at the Henry Smart home.

Mrs. W. S. Chilvers returned Sunday from Oklahoma and Kansas where she has been visiting for the past two weeks.

The Ladies Aid Society of Cass met at the home of Mrs. Lydia Cheese last Thursday.

Miss Grace Smart visited in Chicago Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. Burnett and children will leave Monday for her old home in North Carolina and will spend the winter months there.

Ervin Oldfield is confined to his bed with an attack of pneumonia.

Mrs. Joseph Shepherd visited with her father, J. E. Oldfield and sister, Mrs. Chas. Hawkins, Wednesday.

Some unknown party or parties stole a large auto truck early Sunday morning from the warehouses of the Alcazar Range and Heater Co., of Chicago and loaded up with eighteen barrels of whiskey, which was also stolen and left for — somewhere in Illinois. The truck was located at the J. E. Oldfield farm Tuesday evening by M. A. Gilbertson, who represents the Alcazar Co. The whiskey is still missing, "may it never turn up."

HART BRINGS BOY ACTOR TO TEARS BY STORY TELLING

Strategy frequently plays an important part in the making of William S. Hart's plays. Every subject, it seems presents a situation of an embarrassing nature that only quick wit or concentrated thought will overcome, yet Hart goes on unperturbed and optimistic, always prepared to solve the next problem.

The latest obstacle with which he was confronted sprang up during the filming of "The Desert Man," the Martin Brown and Lambert Hillyer, in which Thomas H. Ince presents Hart as star. It was caused by the stoic refusal of Buster Irving to cry at the time when he was wanted to cry. Buster is the little boy who plays the important part of Joey in this throbbing drama, and one of his big scenes is that in which he weeps copiously on the shoulder of Hart.

At the moment of making this scene Buster did not feel like crying. He was in a particularly cheerful mood, and Hart readily realized that he was about to experience difficulty in driving away the "joys" from the little fellow.

Finally the actor took Buster on his knee and gained his attention with a fearful ghost story replete with weird imaginings. His central character was "a little boy who wouldn't cry." Slowly Buster's face lost its brightness, his upper lip commenced to quiver, and at last the youngster broke into tears. Then Hart proceeded to enact his scene.

JUDGE A. J. GRAY DIES IN MARENGO

County Judge Arthur J. Gray of Savanna, Ill., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gray, 1563 Second avenue, Cedar Rapids, and one of the best known men in Carroll County, Ill., where for the last three years he has served as county judge, died at the home of relatives in Marengo Tuesday at 8 a. m., Oct. 16th. His death is the result of an injury suffered last summer while cranking an engine in his motorboat, added to an attack of pneumonia. Funeral services were held at 2:30 p. m., Friday in Marengo with burial in a cemetery there.

Arthur J. Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gray, was born in Trear, Ia., April 3, 1871, and lived there until he reached the age of twenty years. He was educated in the public schools at that place and was a graduate of the state university at Iowa City. He later entered the Northern Illinois college of law from which he graduated in 1896.

He then proceeded to Chicago and started practicing law. He continued there for seven years when he came to Savanna, and engaged in the same profession, which he has since followed successfully. In 1909 Gray was married to Mrs. Sayers of Marengo, Ia., and has his parents and the following sister and relatives survive—sisters: Mrs. M. M. Dornon, of Des Moines; Mrs. J. Clark, Vinton; Miss Eleanor Gray, Bellingham Wash. Miss Alpharetta Gray, Cedar Rapids; brothers: Dr. A. Gray, Savanna; John Gray, Downers Grove; Dr. Luther Gray, Edgewood, Ia.; and Ralph D. and Clarence O. Gray of Cedar Rapids.

Three years ago Mr. Gray was elected judge of Carroll County, Ill., and during his service as such has made a splendid record. He also gained considerable fame as judge on the bench of the Spencers' court in Chicago. He served as city attorney of Savanna for several years.

He was a man of great personality and one who was interested in civic affairs. He took an active part in all
