CURE FOR LITTLE AILMENTS

Real Trouble Can Usually Be Depended On to Make One Forget the Smaller Ones.

Man and animals alike, it's wonderful what a shock will do to heal our errors and our weaknesses. The only thing that ever stopped Uncle Bill in an argument was a dispan, or some heavy, blunt instrument clouted over his brow, and in his younger days he was some arguer, as his scars attest.

Two Kinds.

There is a place in the world for reformers. Reformers are the gentlemen who created our great Declaration of Independence, and the Constitution of the United States. Bless them, we say. At the same time there should be more positive reformers and fewer negative reformers, the latter being well-meaning persons who are always against something and not for anything.—Arlinson Globe.

PIONEER LIFE IN MISSOURI

Was "Fine for Men and Dogs," but Undoubtedly Also Hard on the Women.

"In Pioneer Families of Missouri," is printed a letter written by a woman to her sister in Kentucky, the Kansas City Star says:

"The men and dogs have a fine time, but we poor women have to suffer. We pack water from one-half mile to one mile for cooking and washing. My advice is stay where you are. But if you see anyone coming to this country, send a plank cradle for poor little Patrick. His poor little back is full of hard bumps, lying in a crude George made out of a hollow log, with a piece of wood for a pillow. George and I attended a wedding last week. The preacher, a hard-shell Baptist, had a long buckskin overcoat. The groom was in his shirt sleeves, with white cotton pants that came just below his knees, and white cotton socks and buckskin slippers on his feet. The girl was dressed in a low-necked, short-waisted, short-sleeved white cotton dress that was monstrous short for a girl like her. She had on buckskin slippers and her hair was tied with a buckskin string, which is all the go here. And when the preacher was appealing and reading the ceremony from the book, the girl commenced sneezing and the buckskin string slipped off her hair, which fell all over her face, and everybody laughed."

An early marriage ceremony in Livingston county took place with the couple on one side of Medicine creek and Squire Jordan on the other side. The creek was booming. The young man swam the stream and brought the squire down from his house. Then the young man swam back and took his place beside the young woman. Squire Jordan couldn't swim. He wanted to postpone the ceremony a few days until the creek went down. The young folks wouldn't have it. They joined hands and told the squire to go ahead. The questions and answers were shouted across the creek and the knot was tied. Medicine creek got its name, according to tradition, because a country doctor in trying to swim it lost his "pill bags," as they were called.

LIFE OF A DEPOT AGENT

His Duties Are manifold and He is Envied by Few, According to This.

The life of a railway agent is one of roses and cinders for the most part. Some folks think that about all he has to do is to sell tickets and keep the extra cent when he makes odd change, but there are other things in the life of a railway agent besides framing your face in a ticket office window and opening a money drawer with a doorknob on it, and smiling when the folks ask him what time the 5:00 train will be here if it's on time.

From early in the morning when he starts the day by looking into the coal bin at the end of the platform to see how much bituminous has been stolen during the night, until sundown, when he starts out to hang drug store signs on the switch posts, he is an extremely busy man, says the Walker (Minn.) Pilot. Between checking over freight receipts and running the hay press for the carbon copies of waybills, it's no wonder he hasn't time to build a fire in the waiting room or rub off last week's train schedule from the black-board, because he is a busy man.

He hates to complain to his car and the telegraph keys with the other, and has been known to answer the phone, sell a steamship ticket and put a bucket of coal in the stove all at the same time, in order to get his work done within the eight-hour schedule. About the only ones to envy an agent his job are the girls in the town, and that's because he has such a good chance to get acquainted with the brakemen on all the freights.
