Remember Aesop's story of the Ant and the Grasshopper? How the Grasshopper sang all summer long with no thought of the coming winter, while the Ant worked and stored up a supply of necessities for use during the cold weather? If you do you'll also remember that the Grasshopper froze to death while the Ant lived to enjoy life for many moons thereafter.

Courtesies of the Match.

There were the usual courtesies as to precedence in the use of the match. "It's very English," said the man in the corner. "In Scandinavia you can tell the nationality of a man by the way he lights his cigarette. A Swede strikes a match, uses it and throws it away. A Dane uses the match first and then offers it to you. The Norwegian strikes a match, offers it to his companion and uses the rag-end himself."—London Chronicle.

ROSCOE FATTY ARBUCKLE in "Moonshine"
PARAMOUNT-ARBUCKLE COMEDY

We have seen Fatty as a village blacksmith in a "Country Hero." He was better than Hart or Fairbanks in his western picture "Out West." He was wonderful in the role of a rustic jack-of-all-trades in "The Bell Boy" and now he will be a revenue officer in "Moonshine." It would never do to tell all the surprises that are in this great picture but as Joe Latinsky says: "Never in mine life before am I such a laffink. Vunce I laff, twict in de same place."

Adolph Zukor presents

Pauline Fredericks in "LA TOSCA"

ENID BENNETT

in "Naughty, Naughty"

The story is decidedly different than the customary photoplay. It deals with the struggle of an up-to-date young girl who visits New York and rejuvenates the old-fashioned narrow-minded town she lives in. Miss Bennett has a role that gives her an opportunity to display her talents as a comedienne. This is a real rural comedy.
