A Mystery.

An eastern woman is smiting for divorce because she found another woman's picture in her husband's watch case. One of the mysteries of life is why men who lead double lives don't carry open-faced watches.

TWENTY-TWO YEARS AGO IN THE REPORTER

(From the issue of June 25, 1896) Last Monday evening at 10 o'clock the spirit of beautiful little Margaret Waples left its tenement of clay and left behind a gloom in the hearts of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Waples.

Rev. Henry W. Dowding has been called to the pastorate of the Congregational church at Lunenburg, Mass., and with his family will leave for that place Saturday.

F. A. Brode has broken ground for his new residence north of Dr. Gourley's.

"Gene" Farrar is painting and decorating the Stanley cottages on Curtiss St.

Frank D. Lindley has disposed of two of his residences on the North side. He also has purchased a tract of land South of the village.

The railroad company has added another gateman to attend to the Main street crossing.

Charles Mochel invested in a high grade piano last week. It is a "Straube."

Thomas Holland was struck by an engine at 12th street yards last Saturday and quite seriously bruised about the shoulder. No bones were broken.

Eugene Dickson has a 12 pound son born May 14th.

Howard Jones left for the western part of the state the first of the week. It is reported he has gone to accept a situation.

Capt. Dickson and wife from South Chicago, visited their son R. J. Dickson last Sunday.

OVER THE TOP BY JUNE 28TH

Over the top by June 28th. That is the task set for Illinois by the War Savings Committee.

Every county in the state is to make a desperate effort to see that its full quota of $20 for each man, woman and child in the county, is either pledged or sold by that time.

June 28th has been designated by Secretary McAdoo at National War Savings Stamp Day. On that day Illinois is asked to purchase at least one $5 War Savings Stamp—the price of which will then be $4.17—for every man, woman and child in the state. That means more than 6,000,000 stamps, and more than $25,000,000 in money.

It sounds like a large order, in the aggregate, but it isn't. It is merely a test of each individual's loyalty to the extent of $4.17. It isn't even asking anyone to give $4.17 to help win the war, it is merely asking him to lend that much, to make an investment in the world's best Government security.

Illinois had its Pledge Week before the plans for the national drive. This was successful in proportion to the energy put into it. Some counties went over the top. Others came near it. Others did little. The state as a whole is far behind. What each county must do in June depends largely on the results obtained during Pledge Week.

But, at any rate, June is to be made the month of actual sales. The Thrift Stamp is to be left for the Children. Adults are asked to consider nothing smaller than the $5 War Savings Stamp. They are asked to buy these stamps five, ten, twenty, a hundred or up to two hundred at a time.

The buyer of twenty stamps becomes a member of the Illinois War Savings Certificate Club, with one gold star on his engraved certificate. He gets another star for every additional twenty stamps he buys. The certificate, framed and preserved will be an answer, in years to come, to the question, "What did you do to help win the great war?"

Purchase of 200 of the stamps makes the buyer a member of the Maximum War Savings Club of Illinois. Two hundred stamps will cost just $834 in June and will be worth $1,000 on Jan 1st, 1923. They may be redeemed at any time prior to maturity, and each stamp increases one cent in value for every month it is held.

There must be 10,000 persons in Illinois who are able to become members of the Maximum Club and 100,000 who could easily join the war Savings Certificates Club. These must be rounded up in June.

"Buy the stamps now" is to be the slogan of the War Savings workers. Put Illinois in the lead. Go over the top for the U. S. A on or before June 28th.

"NAUGHTY, NAUGHTY"

All of the small town of Lillyville, Kansas, is assembled at its railroad station, awaiting the arrival of its one daily train. This in itself is not unusual, but the fact that pretty Roberta Miller, daughter of Lillyville's banker, is expected back from her long visit to wicked New York City, adds lustre to the occasion.

As the limited "hesitates" gingerly at the tiny depot Lillyville looks in vain for its wandering daughter. The sharp eye of the Clarion editor, however, discerns a great commotion up at the forward end of the train where a small girl stunningly dressed, is superintending the unloading of seven huge trunks. Now the editor of the Clarion, while a trifle narrow-minded like the rest of the townspeople, is at heart a good chap and when he recognizes in the trim form of the young person, his former sweetheart, Roberta, he makes a grand rush to welcome her. Lillyville follows in a body gasping with surprise.

Roberta had left them a demure, unsophisticated child in gingham, and she had returned a fashion plate. Lillyville pursed its lips and declared that it had known all along that "Noo Yawk" wasn't no place for a young girl." About thirty-six hours later Lillyville is still surer of this, for Roberta's frocks, the last word in chic—are nothing if not striking. The young editor of Lillyville's new sheet—Matthew Sampson—takes upon himself to sternly rebuke Miss Roberta, and the subsequent chilliness of atmosphere when they meet is quite pronounced.

Roberta, and Prudence Sampson, who has come unreservedly to her side, are planning a campaign of their own to develop Lillyville and awake it from its state of self-satisfied narrowness.

A certain Judith Holmes is the model young lady of Lillyville—a very paragon of virtue, and it is to her that the two plotters turn their attention. Very diplomatically they commence teaching Judith to dance. Before long they have her believing that she is a second Mrs. Vernon Castle—and incidentally taking an hour longer to dress than formerly each day.

A certain Trevelyan's Dancing Pavilion a few miles from Lillyville had long been a figurative thorn in that community's side. There was nothing very objective about the place, except possibly a "blind pig" its owner ran in connection with the dancing. Roberta proposed that they, three girls should go over and enjoy a dance on a really good floor. Aside from Prudence, she says that they will leave Judith, the Model Young Lady there, sending an anonymous message to some of the stricter church members to the effect that they will find the "flower" of their city at Trevelyan's.

Everything happens as they plan except that the editor of the Clarion is the one to receive the note, and he starts off alone to investigate. Roberta's conscience in the meantime has warned her of the unfair trick she was about to play and just as Matthew drives into the yard of the dancing pavilion, she sends Prudence and Judith out by another door, herself being detained by the angry proprietor. Desperately, she looks around for a means of escape and dashes into a little room nearby, where, to her surprise one of the most respected church deacons is calmly enjoying a cocktail. She threatens to tell unless he will help her, and between them they manage to convince Matthew and the rest of Lillyville that it is better for the young people to dance at home under the auspices of the church than to seek their relaxation elsewhere. Thus, it is that Roberta transfigures the prim little village and wins Matthew over to her way of thinking as well.

Will be shown at the Dicke Theatre, Tuesday, June 25th.

Keeping Warm in Finland. In many ways the Finns are a very queer people. It is during the terrible cold months that the Finns revel in the mighty ovens that fill one corner of every kitchen and often loom up large and vastly impressive in the other rooms of a Finn home as well. The tops of these monster stoves are perfectly flat, and steps lead up on one side. When the weather becomes bitterly cold and bleak, the entire Finnish family will take quilts and pillows and, mounting to the top of the big heater, spread down their bedding and sleep very comfortably and contentedly on the hard hot bricks until morning.—Nevia C. Winter, in Christian Herald.

Superstition Concerning Caut. It used to be the belief that a child "born with a caul" would turn out very fortunate, and that the caul itself would bring luck to those who purchased it. Even lawyers used to buy them at high prices, as a means of making them eloquent, but their chief virtue always has lain in the fact that they were supposed to be an infallible amulet against death by drowning. Hence in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries there was a great demand for them in the British navy.
