Y. M. C. A. NEWS

One hundred and nineteen men who are too old to fight have decided that the fifty-one specific industries in which they have been engaged are non-essential while the Y. M. C. A. offers them the opportunity to render patriotic service overseas, according to a census of the intensive training conference for workers completed yesterday at Columbia University.

The question, "Where do these men come from, these men who are leaving families and business to cross the Atlantic to stand behind their son and younger brothers in the greatest crisis of their lives?" reveals amazing answers. Briefly, for the benefit of those who still may entertain some doubts as to the scope of the Y. M. C. A. work with the American Expeditionary Forces and in the French and Italian armies, it may be stated that only five of the 119 men graduated yesterday will engage in purely religious work in Europe. And one of these five is a tire worker.

The most important jobs in France today, according to William H. Crawford, president of Allegheny College and director of the Columbia conferences, are those of hut secretaries and members of motor transport service. The secretary is the man who comes in actual contact with the boys in khaki; without the motor transport he has nothing with which to do business, except his personality, and personality cannot supply all the comforts which the soldier finds in cigarettes, gum, chocolate and safety razors.

Fifty-four of the groups under discussion go overseas as hut secretaries. Nineteen go with the determination to see that, come what may, the flow of supplies from the great divisional storerooms to the huts and dugouts of the camps and trenches under shell fire shall be uninterrupted. Sixteen others are to devote themselves to canteen work, a form of hut activity. Thus there remain thirty who have been assigned to the work of athletic leadership, as entertainers, musical directors and song leaders, construction work, stenography, book-keeping and the like. Two Chinese students will work among the men of their own race who are in labor units.

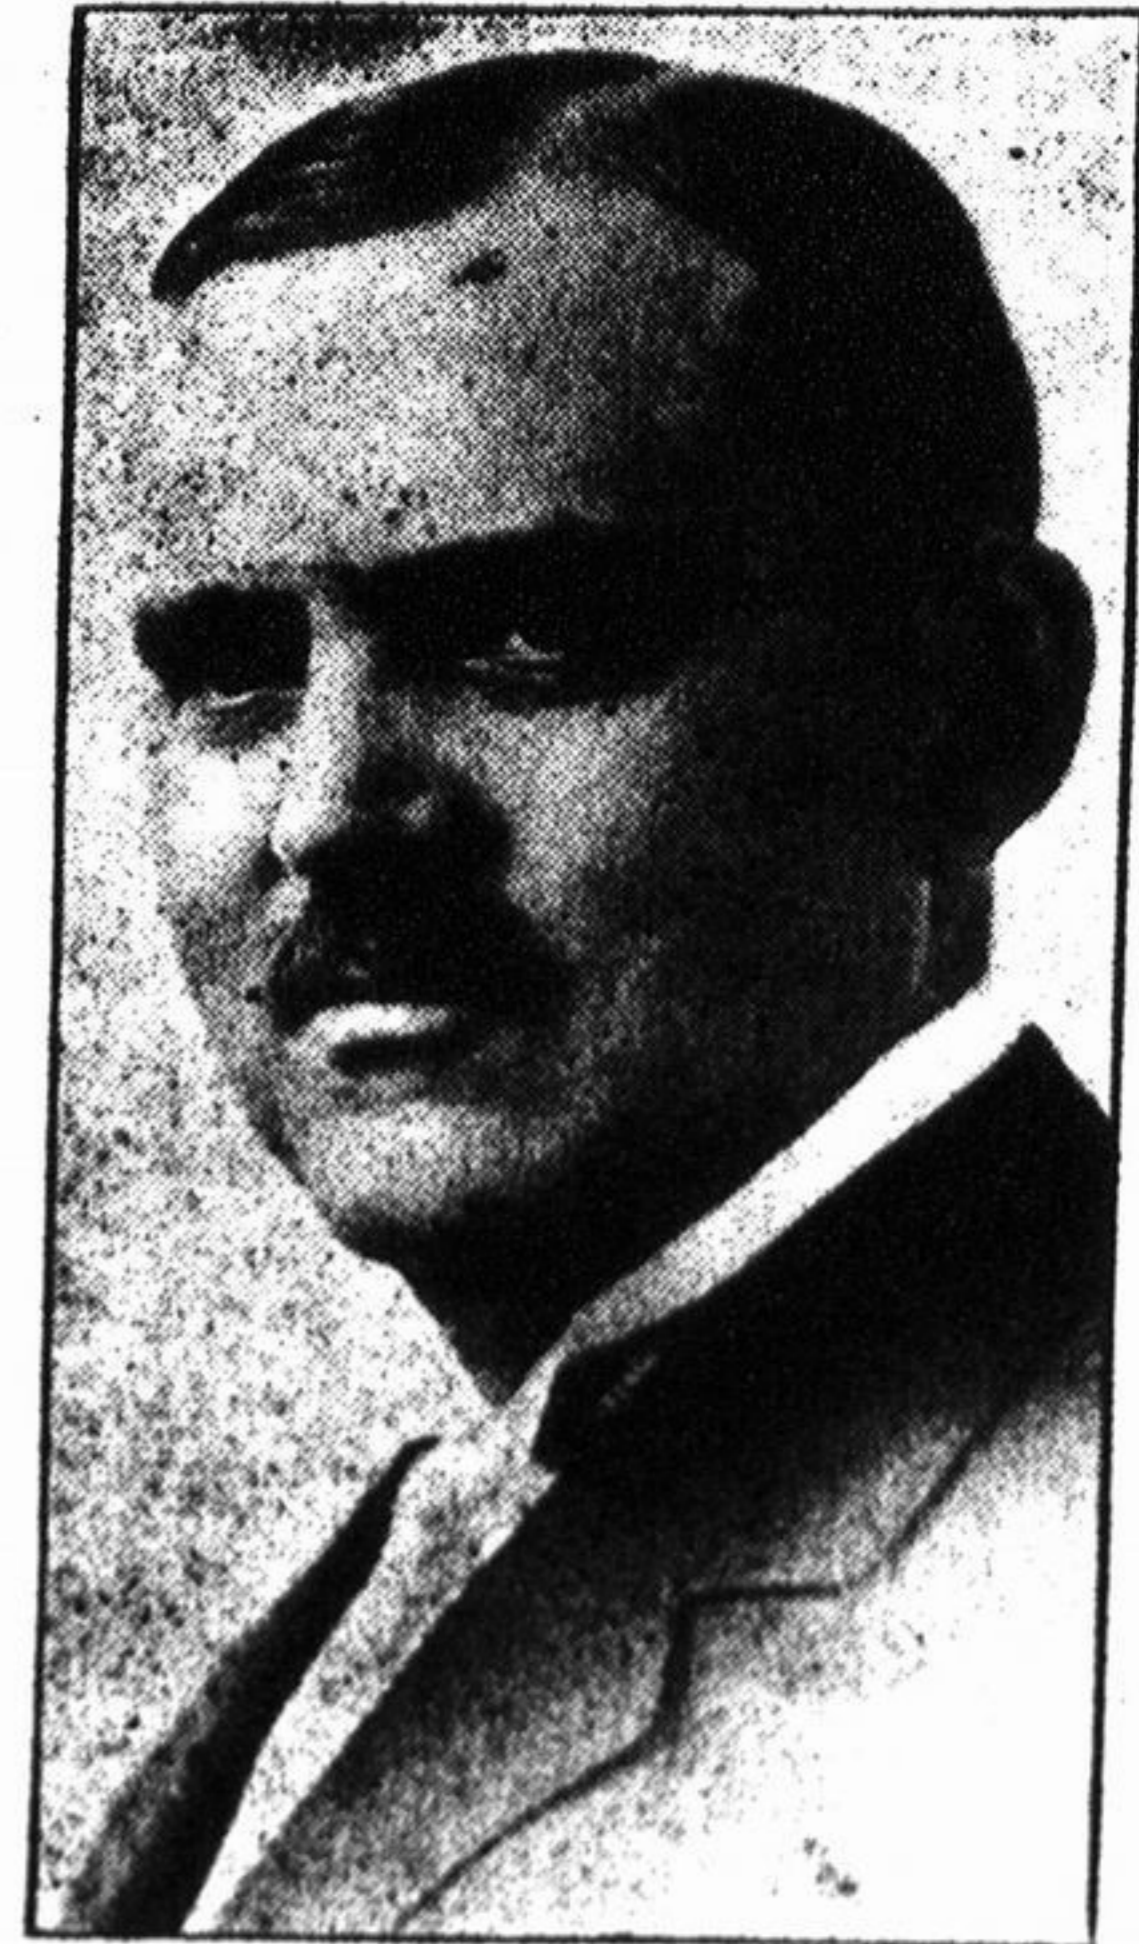

As far as the eye may wander over Dr. Crawford's clear and concise arrangement of his census, some outstanding feature may be discovered. Here is a man catalogued as "journalist" who goes to engage in "war propoganda." That's the only kind of propoganda the "Y" is carrying on these days. Dr. J. R. Mott, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. War Work Council, who has made five trips to the war zone in four years, has said many times:

"As we do not go to engage in a Young Men's Christian Association propoganda, it is important that by our lives and that by our spirit we show forth that which is best in American life."

The point, of course, is that the Y. M. C. A. is merely the agent of a great work, selected by General Pershing as one of the integral parts of the military machine, not because it was the Y. M. C. A. but because the Association had the organization upon which could be built a greater organization capable of carrying out a definite program which General Pershing has included in his plans for the winning of the war.

CANDIDATE FOR RENOMINATION

Congressman Ira C. Copley Aurora, Illinois

I take this means of announcing to the voters of the Eleventh Congressional District that I shall again ask the Republicans of this splendid District in their Primaries on September 11 to nominate me for the high office of Member of Congress.

My platform will have but one plank, WIN THE WAR.

As a means to this end, if nominated and elected, I shall continue to uphold the Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, without reference to his personality or his politics. I believe this to be the plain duty of every American citizen.

I also pledge myself to do everything possible to protect loyal Americans and to punish traitors and traitorous profiteers.

Respectfully submitted,
I. C. COPLEY

In spite of the shortage of physicians, the "Y" has recruited one who believes that as a hut secretary, performing for the comforts of the physically fit, he can do greater service than by following the profession for which he was trained.

Of the seven lawyers included in the census two who were athletes in college and have never lost their love for outdoor sports are going to be sport leaders in France. Another who dabbles in amateur theatricals is going overseas with the entertainment section. Two real estate men, three salesmen, two life insurance agents, a fire insurance agent and a hotel manager—all engaged in activities in which the personal equation is pre-eminent—will find full opportunities for their talents as secretaries. And two photographers will endeavor to obtain the results which are associated with the traditional, "Look pleasant, please."

Also in the secretarial list will be found a lecturer, a civil engineer, two jewelers, an accountant, a cotton dealer, a bookkeeper, a paving expert, a dealer in railroad supplies, a credit investigator, railroad postal clerk, farmer and an optometrist. To this list may be added a locomotive engineer, accustomed to making heavy grades on slippery rails and delivering the goods on time.

A dentist, a teacher, two salesmen, two real estate men, a building contractor, a collector and a manufacturer—men who own and drive their automobiles and can make minor repairs—are going overseas as truck drivers in the motor transport service. Truck drivers they will be called, but on excellent authority it may be stated that plentiful use will be found for the abilities that have made them successful in their respective lines. The truck driver must meet the general, the private and the secretary as their equal." Also in this list are a rural free delivery mail carrier, automatically assigned by virtue of his ex-officio position as representative of a mail order house; an undertaker and a cobbler.

The only stenographer on the list is going to be a stenographer and one of the two accountants is listed as an accountant. So is one of the two musical directors. The other, evidently a disciple of Creator or some other acrobatic director, is to be a sports leader.

Verily the men who are too old to fight but are not too old to stand behind the men behind the guns are as representative of America as are the young fellows who go over the top. And although they are not considered physically fit for the trenches, many of them will know every thrill of the trenches except that of going over the top into No Man's Land.

The "Y" goes wherever the fighting men are stationed. The "Y" follows the flag.

Ideal Friendship

Inevitably may fascinate, but it is not lovable. Only honesty and directness of dealing can win a lasting attachment. Artificial folk are desperately afraid of the picturesquely unconventional actions that they think will make them ridiculous. They are so stiff and starched in their mannerliness that they are hopelessly uninteresting. Sticklers for etiquette and for the observances of all the minor canons of good form, they find so many petty, silly rules to follow that they have no time to give rein to large and generous impulses. A personality that makes itself count ardently and lastingly in other lives and for the world's well being is too high for spite, too noble for mean, small ways, too genuine for intrigue and innuendo and too faithful to sacrifice a friend.

Got Proof of It

A little Polish girl called to play with Lena, whose mother asked the little girl some questions in English and the child made no reply or sign that she understood what was being asked her. Lena said to the child, "Mabel, don't you want some candy?" The child replied in English, "Yes," which caused Lena to say, "I knowed she knowed how to talk English."

Three Cows for Every Australian.

It is estimated that Australia has cows enough to give each man, woman and child in the island continent three each, while Argentina can do even better. There are five cattle to each inhabitant in the big South American republic.
