CAMP CHECAUGAU NOW ENTERTAINING MORE LOCAL BOYS

On Tuesday evening campers at Checaugau resolved themselves into a party of Chippewa Indians and a party of white settlers. The white settlers with an hour for preparation chose a secluded spot in the heart of the woods and built a blazing camp fire, thus encamping for the night.

ENJOYMENT FOR THE ENTIRE FAMILY DICKE THEATRE EVERY Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday

zed the defense of the white settlers the main body of Indians attacked the camp and a hot battle ensued. As it is in all adventure stories, so was it with this game, the white settlers were victorious 13 to 2.

The baseball teams of Checaugau and the Oak Park camp, Camp Roberts, came together Tuesday afternoon for the final game of the season. Each camp, having won two games, firmly resolved that they would be the season's champions. After a fast and furious battle Camp Checaugau won 4 to 2.

Thursday evening the campers of Camps Checaugau and Roberts gathered about Checaugau's fire for an exchange of songs, yells and stunts. Judson P. Freeman, National Field Scout Commissioner of District Four, was the central figure at the camp fire, telling experiences, amusing stories and finally in a quiet talk pointing out to the boys their opportunities for a valuable manhood to be found in the Scouting program.

Although old "Jup Pluv" visited camp often during last week with his damp greetings, the camp managed to stage a program of stunt races, a hike to Lake Zurich, and a war game between showers.

The fourth and last period of the season was launched Monday with an enrollment of 52 scouts.

Mrs. E. S. Dick with a party from Elgin were visitors at camp Tuesday and were the donors to camp of a bushel of peaches which of course, made a hit with the boys. Mr. C. E. Bauer, a visitor of Sunday, presented the camp with four huge watermelons which were also popular with the boys. Mr. Wilson Rutherford's Field Scout Executive of the Calumet District, and a party were visitors Sunday and over night.

First-Class scouts made their fourteen-mile hike Thursday.

Fred Roti of Troop 26 after three weeks of effort dived from the high diving platform with the aid of much bribing, persuading and pushing.

The treasure hunt of the period was held Saturday afternoon. Tent "D" coming out victorious by finding the treasure in fifty minutes.

The local scouts enjoying the good times of the fourth period are:

SALVATION ARMY TO PUT ON DRIVE FOR HOME SERVICE

Goodbye, little Salvation Army lassie with tinkling tambourine seeking stray nickels and pennies for sidewalk loungers. More efficient financial methods are about to take your familiar form from the streets, in the cities of Illinois.

Your feet have known dark and devious paths, your tiny tambourine and bundles of "War Crys" have led you into places which women with less exalted ideals than yours shunned with horror. It will not be necessary much longer for you to face sneers or laughs for money with which to carry on your work of mercy.

A great financial campaign, to be called the Salvation Army Home Service Campaign will be waged thru-out all sections of Illinois September 22 to 29 to raise funds to put the work of the Salvation Army on a more sound and efficient financial basis. This new campaign will supplement the wonderful war work done by the army.

In the past, virtually all the funds used in the carrying of Light into places of Darkness were raised by the lassies with the tambourines, and the street corner singer with the up-turned drum.

For purposes of the campaign, Illinois has been divided into three main divisions. Division A embraces the northern counties; B, the Central counties and C, the southern subdivisions.

Each division is divided into districts, farther to simplify the work of the campaign, the entire state being subdivided into fourteen of these districts.

With these districts separate organizations will be formed as the needs arise. In some there are no large cities the unit of organization may be a county or a township. Each county will have headquarters located at the county seat.

Some of the field workers who are sent out as an advance guard to perfect the organizations, already are at their tasks, and others are leaving the headquarters in Chicago daily. The central headquarters are in the rotunda of the old Grand Pacific hotel.

The general officers of the campaign are Evangeline Booth, commander of the United States Forces of the Salvation Army; Commissioner Thomas Estlin, in charge of the work in the Western states; Staff Captain C. A. Ryan, general campaign director, and R. Dunbar, state director.

HERE'S STORY MIGHT HAVE SOME BEARING ON THE H. C. OF Living

(From Sycamore Tribune August 12)

Mr. and Mrs. V. I. Clark entertained over Sunday their friends, the E. W. Dresser family of Wheaton. Mr. Dresser is prominent in the R. R. Donnelly printing establishment of Chicago, one of the largest institutions of the kind in the country.

In its line of business the Donnelly folks print trade catalogues. This of itself might be a simple line of information under ordinary circumstances and during ordinary times. But at this particular moment a wonderful story hangs upon the statement. One of the catalogues was started not long ago. Prices at that time of course were zigzagging up and down in a manner to make most printers dizzy but before they had finished changing the copy after it had been set, 4,300 entire new pages had to be made and when all the corrections had been made the additional cost in that one catalogue had run up to the sum of $20,000. It doesn't seem possible. But it is true nevertheless as Mr. Dresser informed Mr. Clark and isn't it enough to demand a scare head?

This tremendous loss fell upon the trade and it was due to the constantly shifting raises in prices all along the line. It is made the more astonishing by being brought home to Sycamore by friends and acquaintances like Mr. Dresser.

This great sum which became a dead loss would have enabled the concern getting out the catalogue to help materially in reducing the high cost of living if it could have been permitted to divide it among its customers. People can stand having their allotments of sugar and flour made by an administrative force and the many changes can be measured and the housewife can govern her expenditures accordingly; but to regulate one's expense account to fit the price changes—we must pass it up.

"NUGGET NELL"

Dicke Theatre, Tuesday, August 26th. Nugget Nell, proprietress of an eating house in the mining country, sits in her big, neat, rough dining room and twirls her trusty six-shooter. Tidy, annoyed by strains of near-music that drifts in through the window, she fires outdoors.

Two cowboys, whose voices lifted in song have attracted Nell's attention, retire in disorder before the fusillade, as the warning comes close enough to force them to seek safety elsewhere.

Big Hearted Jim, the sheriff, comes to the eating house to declare his love for Nell. In spite of his bashfulness, Nell is about to step into his arms when her old uncle, who assists her about the place, comes into the scene, and love-making is off—at least for the present. Anyway, Nell is not any too sure, yet, of her love for Big Hearted Jim.

A city chap, who Nell decides instantly is her ideal arrives. The chap however is interested in a blond fellow traveler. Jealousy, Nell watches the flirtation. Desiring to imitate the lovely blond lady, she decides to purchase suitable clothes. Her uncle however, has rifled the cash drawer. Nothing daunted Nell mounts her horse and rides to town, where she does her shopping at the point of a gun. She then walks down the street and selects attractive articles of wearing apparel at random—a hat from this girl and shoes and stockings from the next—emphasizing her demands with the threatening muzzle.

Even after she is "dolloped up" the apple of her eye refuses to be interested. An outlaw band decides to make way with the City Stranger for his "jack" and in frustrating their attempt, Nell finds what a coward is her "ideal." Then, with all perils at last overcome, Nell points out the road to the City Chap, and tells him to Go! At last, she finds herself in the arms of her one real and true love—Big Hearted Jim.
