William Desmond in "A Sage Brush Hamlet"

Comedy and dramatic suspense are not supposed to be affinities, and it is seldom that humor and the thrill of combat are united in the same scene. In "A Sage Brush Hamlet," however, there is a fight which combines the elements of hilarious comedy and dramatic action perfectly. "Lococo Larry" a cow puncher (played by Desmond) when attacked by a desperado, entrenches himself behind a feather-bed which becomes wrecked during the melee and begins spouting feathers all over the place, swirling about the combatants like a young snow-storm. The most thrilling and comical fight ever screened.

What You'll See in "A Sage Brush Hamlet" How a tenderfoot Miss tames a man-eating cow-puncher.

A pretty girl in a nightie shocking a hard-shell puncher. Scenes in a cattle country when the "Boys" feel gay.

"THE WITNESS FOR THE DEFENSE"
Directed by GEORGE FITZMAURICE.

Ashes of Dreams! The home she had planned with him, the joyous working together, the full, happy years — gone! Tomorrow her trial for murder of the brutal husband that "duty" had bade her wed. What was the verdict — of the jury and of fate?

"NOT GUILTY" — The jury had set her free. But if a dead man, once her husband—slain out there in the Indian jungle — could have spoken, what would he have said? The witness for the defense thought he knew, and his ugly leer told her why he had saved her life. Yet you're due for a big surprise, and thrills and power a-plenty, when you see beautiful Elsie Ferguson in this masterful presentation of a stage success.

Steele (William Farnum) is a Texas Ranger who has sworn to avenge the death of his friend, Ueil, Captain of the Rangers, shot from ambush by one of a notorious band of cattle thieves. Steele is known throughout the border country as a fearless man and "lightning quick on the draw." While on his way to Fairfield, the supposed center of the band of cattle thieves, Steele meets Ray Longstreth, daughter of Cyrus Longstreth—who, unknown to the girl, is the leader of the gang of outlaws, while passing as a leading citizen of wealth and irreproachable integrity.

Ray has just returned from the East and when the stage leaves her at a desolate plains settlement Steele rescues her from two gunmen and earns the gratitude of both the girl and her father. Steele is not recognized as a Ranger and is given a "job" by Longstreth on his ranch. Soon his duties include those of riding with Miss Ray. The rustler, Jeff Lawson, a nephew of Longstreth's, who loves Ray, looks on the stranger as an interloper whose coming bodes no good, and watches him.

Steele learns the truth about his employer and Lawson and sets about getting them into the clutches of the law. He realizes he loves Ray and knowing the true character of her father is in appreciation. He discloses his identity and makes clear to Ray how her father is involved. She pleads that her father has always been in the power of Brome and Lawson and win's Steele's promise to do her father no harm.

Steele hearing of a threat to put him out of the way forces the issue and in an encounter with Brome, kills him.
