THE REVIVAL MEETINGS.

Attendance, interest and spirituality have gained momentum as the services continued. Many have chosen to walk with Christ and live the Christian life. Sunday's services will be the climax of the series. Mr. Joop, the evangelist singer, who has been with us every evening, will lead the singing. He also will appear in solos and the quartet. Hear him! The East Grove church people came in a body last Sunday with their pastor and decided to do the same next Sunday evening. This to-operation is greatly appreciated. A hearty welcome is extended to the community. All are WELCOME!

TWENTY-TWO YEARS AGO IN THE REPORTER

From the issue of January 6 1898.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Straube leave this week for Pensacola, Florida and other points in the south.

Miss Eva Hunt, of Naperville, was the guest of Miss Anna Wetton over New Years.

The many friends of the family will be sorry to hear of the death of Miss Grace Kimball which occurred at Pasadena, Calif., on Christmas day, where she had been for several months on account of her health. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Kimball of South Main street.

The Rev. Thos. Bickford has disposed of his property interests on South Washington street to Ellen Lauing and with his family will leave soon for Georgia where they will make their future home. This move is made on account of his daughter, Faith, whose health it is hoped the milder climate will benefit.

Jacob Klein, Jr., was taken ill with diphtheria Monday and at present his condition is considered serious.

One of the most delightful parties of the season was given by a number of young people on New Year's eve. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. R. D. McKinney; Misses Anna A. Wetton; Edith Ernest; Lou Smith; Minnie Willard; Florence S. Fraenkel; Olive Mertz; Gertrude R. Fraenkel; Louise E. Stanley; Doris M. Fraenkel; Laura Hughes; Maude Bateman; Mabel Gesner; Eva Hunt; Arvilla Sweet and Louise Colwell. Messrs. Warren H. Jones; Gay Ernest; Howard P. Jones; Earnest M. Gallup; Benj. N. Hughes; Louis E. Jones; Frank R. Willard; Leo H. Prince; Lee E. Stanley; Ed. H. Huntington; Harry Bateman; T. D. Lafferty; E. C. Wetten; W. H. Blodgett; Walter H. Whiffen; and Hugh M. White.

Jas. M. Burns received the sad intelligence of the death of his father, Rev. Mr. Burns, of Idaho, last week. Mr. Burns was formerly a resident of Downers Grove and will be remembered by many.

LEFT A NAME THAT ENDURES

Memory of Noah Worcester, Known as First "Great Apostle of Peace," Worthily Honored.

America has produced more than one very famous cobbler. One of these was Noah Worcester, known as the first great "Apostle of Peace." He it was who founded the first great "Peace Society of Massachusetts." Born in 1758, he went into the war against Great Britain when about 18 years of age, and fought at the battle of Bunker Hill. He became so disgusted with the vices of the soldier's life and the horrors of the battlefield that he became a hater of war and advocate of peace. He worked in the field all day and made shoes at night, besides studying as much as he could. He became a minister before 30, continuing to do farm work and cobble shoes so as to eke out an existence. He even taught the children of his parishioners for no pay, conducting a school in his study. It was in 1814, after he had written urging Christian unity, that he published his famous pamphlet, "A Solemn Review of the Custom of War," advocating the abolishment of war, interpreting literally the New Testament doctrine, "Resist not evil." In line with the teaching of the Society of Friends, dying in his 80th year he asked to have inscribed upon his tombstone: "He Wrote the Friend of Peace."

Tasmania.

The island of Tasmania, formerly called Van Diemen's Land, lies off the south coast of Australia. It has an area of 26,380 square miles. It is covered by a network of ridges, termed locally tiers, which enclose a multitude of small plains and valleys. The principal industries are agriculture, mining, stock-raising and some manufacturing. Tasmania is a state in the commonwealth of Australia. It has a population of two hundred thousand. The exports are wool, gold, silver, tin, timber, fruit, jam, hops and hides.

UNWELCOME GUEST

By JACK LAWTON.

The married life of Beatrice and Billy had been ideally happy. But when he entered the little flat one day and gave to Beatrice a letter, Billie's manner was constrained.

"It's from aunt," he explained tersely, "wants to come and visit us."

"Not," Beatrice said, "your Aunt Drusilla, Billy?"

"Being that Aunt Drusilla is the only aunt I possess, it is naturally herself." His tone was pettish.

Beatrice's soft eyes filled with tears. "But Billy," she protested, "we just can't have her. We've been so blissful alone. Your father has always held up this sister of his as a paragon housekeeper. You know how very particular your mother says she was about—everything. She's unmarried, of course, and will criticize me, and my lack of system, and oh! you needn't tell me—" as Billy ventured a remonstrance—"I know that exemplary kind of woman. She will be the snake in our Eden."

Beatrice caught herself up. "How long is she going to stay, Billy?"

The young husband avoided his wife's aggrieved eyes. "About a month, she says," he replied.

Beatrice stiffened defiantly. "Well, she won't stay a—month here," she said.

"Aunt Drusilla writes," Billy suggested, "that she is longing to meet her new niece. She hasn't seen me since I was almost a kid. She was going to be married then, I remember, but something broke it off."

"Her own exacting disposition probably," Beatrice spitefully remarked.

"That's not quite fair of you," Billy defended. His wife smiled.

"You see," she said, "she's beginning to make trouble between us already."

Trouble indeed seemed to fall to Billy's lot. Mentally he blamed the aunt who insisted upon thrusting her presence where the presence of two, was all sufficient. And upon the day of Aunt Drusilla's arrival Beatrice fell ill.

In vain Billy telephoned various women helpers. The helpers were busy. As a last resort, and though his pocketbook could ill afford it, Billy sought a nurse's agency. No nurse could be promised within three days at least. And though the malady from which Beatrice suffered was not necessarily serious, the doctor assured him that she must have immediate care.

Billy himself prepared his wife's breakfast coffee before he went to meet the inevitable Aunt Drusilla, and Beatrice made a face over the coffee.

"It's horrid," she said, ungraciously, "and you must insist upon taking your aunt to a hotel. She can't stay here now. You see that—"

The voice ended in an invalid's wail. Billy hurriedly bent a retreat.

Billy considered his problems as he hurried his little car toward the station, and when he saw his waiting and half-forgotten aunt, his perplexity grew.

Here was not a quiet old body to be lightly disposed of, but a smiling and assured person in pleasing attire, her shrewd eyes twinkling at his from beneath waving hair.

"My dear boy!" she cried, putting forth her gloved hand in greeting. Then, after his very brief response, an awful thing happened to Billy. Stopping in hurried embarrassment to start the car's engine, the handle wrenched itself suddenly free from his grasp to deal him a terrible blow.

Billy, white with pain, knew what afterward proved to be true—that his arm was broken.

It was Aunt Drusilla who gently forced him into the car, and her competent self at the wheel, took him where prompt aid could be found. When the doctor had bandaged Billy into relief, Aunt Drusilla continued to drive the car home.

White lipped and weak, Billy managed to tell his aunt of his young wife's illness and of their now helpless plight. Apologetically he suggested a hotel as her own temporary refuge.

Aunt Drusilla good humoredly waved his suggestion aside.

"I wondered," she said laughingly, "why it was borne forcibly upon me that I must spend a month with you; now I know!"

Beatrice's first intimation of her unwelcome guest was when a sweet-faced woman bent sympathetically over her bed, proffering, as she introduced herself, an invitingly arranged luncheon tray.

"Billy has had an injury to his arm," the new aunt informed her, "and I have made him comfortable upon the couch."

"Now, sit up dearie, and let us get acquainted while you sample my cooking. I am so glad that I happened to come where I'm needed." The blue eyes twinkled through their glasses.

"I'm going to have such a lovely time," Aunt Drusilla said, "fixing you and Billy up."

"Oh! we must not impose—" began Beatrice. But the little aunt silenced her with a smile.

"My dear!" she exclaimed, "this little service will be my pleasure. I am so glad that I came."

Impulsively Beatrice held out her arms.

"I am glad, too," she said, her eyes met the older woman's honestly.

"MAN OF HONOR"

To be shown at the Dicke Theatre, January 15th.

Mortimer Gregg, adventurer, discovers Horse Island, a place of great fertility, while searching for pirate treasure in the semi-tropics. Returning to New York he induces a group of promoters, headed by Christopher Beaumont, of great financial power, to form the Tropical Products Co., with himself as managing director, to transform the tangled wilderness of the island into a vast farm.

During the years of his directorship he fails to fulfill any of the promises he held out for the island's development. Before his death he confesses to his assistant, David Smith, Yale, '09, ex-newspaper reporter, that the scheme was only a blind to fleece the public.

Upon assuming the directorship, Smith determines that part of the money which has been poured into it from the pockets of small stockholders shall be paid back.

After two years of tireless effort he makes the venture profitable. The company, however, is dissatisfied with his report—instead of a truthful account of conditions a "bear" report is wanted.

The scheme is palpable to Smith as another means to defraud the rightful owners of the island, and he decides to fight if Beaumont refuses to be swayed by justice and reason.

When he calls on Beaumont he meets the financier's daughter, Christabel.

Smith invites them to visit Horse Island as his guests. He hopes that when Beaumont sees what has been accomplished he will play square. Beaumont insists that Smith must write the report he wishes, however, but the latter refuses and war is declared.

Smith obtains the treasure, goes to New York and converts it in Tropical Products stock. He advises Christabel of his action and asks her to attend the directors' meeting.

Smith attends the meeting and is surprised to hear his own truthful report read verbatim, a dividend declared, his own salary increased and a place made for him on the Board of Directors. But he not only beats Beaumont in the game of finance but wins for himself the hand of his daughter.

Of Indian Origin.

The powerful political organization "Tammany" was named after the Indian chief "Tamanand" of the Delaware tribe, who was famous for his virtues and wisdom. The Tammany society was founded in New York city May 12, 1782, and became identified with the Republican, now the Democratic party.

Ever Think of This?
There is a natural aversion to seeing any creature contented and happy. A man who goes fishing seldom does so because he is hungry. All he wants to do is to make trouble for the fish.

—Exchange.

Character in the Nose.
There is an old saying that "a man's character is as his nose is." The nose, according to physiognomists, is one of the most important features. Both its size and its shape have their significance.
