Don't Call Me Little Girl
 Adapted from the play "Jerry"
"NOW SEE WHAT YOU'VE DONE!"
 There's nothing left for me to do now but end my life.
 Youth is nothing if not melodramatic. Jerry was young, therefore he took things hard. Especially love. At the first misunderstanding, she was ready to rush off and do something desperate. Or at least give everybody a scare by pretending to!
 In spite of Jerry's tragic scenes, you'll find nothing morbid nor harrowing about this—sprightly comedy.

"Two Weeks With Pay"
 LIKE TWO PEAS IN A POD
 Pansy O'Donnell, who sold hats in the Parisian Shop, and Marie La Tour, the famous "mermaid of the screen" might have been twins; they looked so nearly alike. And that's what started all the trouble. It was fun at first being taken for the great Marie, until she was called upon to do the latter's celebrated high dive. For Pansy got dizzy even when she stood on a chair.
