Another Great Love Story of the Arctic Regions
"The Golden Snare"
BY
James Oliver Curwood
A Royal North-West Sergeant on a man hunt—a baby found in a blizzard—a snare made of a girl's golden hair.
It's a stirring story of what happened when the sergeant got his man—a mad loup-garou—and found him sheltering a girl—a glorious girl of mystery whose hair laid the trail of the golden snare. THE SCREEN CANNOT GIVE TWO PICTURES SUCH AS THIS!

Jackie Coogan
THE "KID" HIMSELF IN
Pecks Bad Boy

PECK'S BAD BOY SPEAKS HIS PIECE:—
"Bein' had don't hurt you. It's what comes afterwards that causes all the grief."
Generally it's your Ma that comes afterwards, and she sure does wave a wicked wand.
You wouldn't say bein' had is a gift so much as a habit. It grows on you, like a soft spot in an apple.
So a cop ain't much different from the man who peddles apples on a barrow. They both make money by getting rid of bad habits.
But it's the barrow man who gets rid of his first. He seems ashamed of them, and puts them in the bottom of the bag.
Folks say I'm wicked and will go where all bad boys go.
Won't they be pleased when they learn I'm in the movies!
But I'm in good company. Irvin S. Cobb is down here, too. He writes my subtitles. Maybe you've heard of my friend Irv. He sometimes gets pieces in the papers—mostly when the regular editors are away on vacation.
That's all. Gotta smash another window now!
