BASEBALL TEAM REORGANIZES

R. W. Lewis is now the manager of the Downers Grove American (@ 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) Legion baseball team. Former manager Binder resigned because the pital that 26th day of December as if great amount of work connected with the managership has handicapped him in performing other duties more pressing. "Brick" has served as manager for almost two years and much credit is due him, thru his untiring leagues, rounded a corner and bumped efforts the Legion boasted one of the strongest ball clubs in this section. Four defeats were handed to the locals last year, "Brick leaves the managerial work with an enviable record. Altho he has not been feeling well this year and many trials and tribulations have been tossed into his hands which in connection with his arduous duties at his place of business he found to be too strenuous but a little 'Home, Sweet Home,' for for him, he is certainly deserving of credit for the work he did for the team.

Recently some friction was created in the team and things have become a bit disorganized, but the new manager promises to do all in his power to do away with all friction and bring the team back to its old stand- stend of buying presents for each othard of efficiency.

Lewis is not a recruit in baseball work, nor is he a stranger to local followers of the game. He is a fan of the first water and knows baseball from soup to nuts. For several years past, Lewis has played semipro ball being manager of the old west side Emerson ball team, at present he plays with the Union Trust nine and all reports show him to be a real heady player. For the present Lewis will manage the team from the bench, he will try and hook up with some of the best teams to be had and we ought to see some first class ball.

NOTES OF THE BALL GAME

The presence of Ted Curtiss and Bobby Carpenter would have pepped things up a wee bit Sunday. With these two veterans out of the game, things were not like they ought to have been.

Jim Karesh was not available Sunday because of a badly split finger. His services were missed quite a big

In the eighth Binder laced a hot one to extreme right which looked good for a neat single, but was foxed as the right fielder scooped it up and insting disgrace upon the rules of this pegged to first beating Brick by a step. Queer things do happen and this was a seldom happener.

Herb handled short like a veteran and garnered lots of credit.

Umpire Blue was a bit muddy at times.

Lemont will be here Sunday, Come out and swell the crowd as well as Norn as her daughter-in-law and I the gate receipts or the locals will would make her very unhappy if I was be forced to travel.

eranky old dowager in room 3. "Because why? The only girl said 'Yes,' last night, and in three months more, no lonesome bachelor quarters, mine. Gee! Isn't it a grand and glorious feeling? Did you get both your stockings full, as you deserve?"

He stopped suddenly, for the little nurse was winking with all her might to keep back the tears,

"All we nurses," she said soberly, "agreed to give all we could spare to the Red Cross and Salvation Army iner, so my stockings hung all limp and lank, for I have no other friends in the city. I am truly glad for you, Doctor O'Connor," and she burried away.

Later, detailed for special duty in room 5. Nurse Rutledge walked softly to the bedside and laid a pitying hand above the bandaged eyes, for she couldn't seem to harden her heart against suffering, as they told her she should to make a success. "Medicine time," she announced cheerily; then caught her breath as if ley water had struck her, and went all trembly, like a little poplar leaf in a storm.

"Kit!" cried the patient, half imploringly, half incredulously. "Little Kit! Answer! Is it you?" and with his free hand tried to tear the band-and something happened to my eyes. "The only thing I minded was to be delayed in finding you, and after all it led me straight where you were. Wonderful! Now tell me something or shall raise a riot and bring down everhospital. What was the trouble?"

She gulped hard, for the words tried to stick in her throat unspoken,

"Your Cousin Nora told me, that day you went to Chicago, that it was outrageous for my father to saddle you with the care of me, at my age, and everybody knew it was just a scheme to get you for my husband instead of 27 S. So just because I loved your motherand von so much, and because I was ashamed, I ran away."

"Oh, woman, woman," groaned the man. "I always knew she had hid sharp claws under that soft fur, but I didn't think she would stoop to catty lies, And you believed them! Have you been happy away from us, foolish little girl?"

"Not a single minute," she confessed, "and sometimes I have almost given up and asked you to take me back again. I've washed floors and helped at terrible operations and the only thing that carried me through was the thought of doing it for your

"Kit," said the man, "in my coat pocket is a ring which I have carried ever since I came from Chicago, thinking to put it on your finger that night. I am mended, will you marry me, and take me home?
