"ALL-COUNTY" TEAMS ARE "ALL THE BUNK"

Editor, Reporter:
 Six "all-county" high school football teams have been picked so far of material from the high school squads of DuPage County. None of them will satisfy all the fans and all of them can be picked full of holes. The reason for this is not hard to find. These alleged all-county teams are picked by people whose knowledge of football is rather limited, who are biased in their judgement by community lines and by friendship with the players.
 There is only one way a DuPage County all-star team can be picked and this is to find a man who is absolutely unbiased. He must see the players in action and not learn of their prowess from hearsay. He must know football, not only from a theoretical standpoint but from having played the game himself. He must understand all the details of this game, being at once a keen observer, a man of sound judgement and be able and willing to see every team in action. In this way and in this way only, can an all-county team be picked which will be nearly authentic and to which all of the fair football fans of the county can say an "Amen."
 "All-County" teams are "All the bunk."

BUY CHRISTMAS SEALS IN DU PAGE COUNTY

The great importance of an understanding and recognition of this childhood type of tuberculosis lies in the possibility of its cure. Most of the cases of tuberculosis of childhood can be cured.
 Recognizing this most important fact, the state tuberculosis societies have found that the most effective means and measures for combating and limiting tuberculosis are those which promote the health of the child, and better his environment.
 To promote in all ways the welfare of the child, in his home and at the school, is to build up his resistance against this disease. To prevent infection is a much desired aim, but one proven to be nearly impossible of accomplishment, for the consumptive with his disease spreading sputum is so prevalent in our midst that the avoidance of infection is highly improbable.

The DuPage County Tuberculosis society is organized to carry on the fight against this disease. Buy Red Cross Christmas seals, stamps and bonds to support the society in its work.
 What better investment is there than a health bond?
 Buy them in DuPage county.

Money of Ancient Britons

Sword-shaped bars of iron were used by the ancient Britons as money, and many of these are now found in British museums. A recent investigation shows that six different denominations were used, distinguished by their size.

The Cheer of Christmas

By Alvah Jordan Garth
 Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union

There was a token of crisp white winter in the air and the oldest inhabitant was daily discussing the probability of "a real genuine old-fashioned Christmas." The river was frozen and a spell of skating and races on the ice promised. The little town had awakened to real enthusiasm and when Susie Burton appeared driving the old family horse with a string of merrily chiming bells attached to the shafts of the wagon which held the cans of sweet, fresh home milk for a coterie of old customers, the cheer of the approaching holidays was intensified.

Susie was poor as her well mended raiment evidenced, but she was superbly happy. "You see," she imparted to an especial confidant, a girl neighbor, "our customers always give us some little remembrance around Christmas time. And mother always makes up enough delicious cottage cheese to go the rounds so we don't appear as if we were beggars" and Susie removed the top of a milk can to display a mass of the delicacy. "Sometimes it's money, sometimes rare gifts bought for money, or clothes, or a knitted hood. Anyway it makes us feel rich around Christmas time each year."
 Susie hoped there would be some real money offering, which she felt her diligence and that of her grandmother truly deserved.
 For a month past Mrs. Burton had referred to "a bill and a judgment."

"Being Led Up a Slanting Platform."

Susie learned that the city firm threatened "to sell the Burtons out." "Surely they won't trouble poor old grandma so cruelly," she hoped, but the next morning when she went out to the stable to hitch up old Dobbin she found the stall empty and her grandmother seated on the front steps of the house, her apron to her eyes. "Oh, grandma! where is Dobbin, and what has happened and why are you crying so bitterly?"
 "Child," was the solemn reply "the worst has come. Two men just took Dobbin away. It is true for us."
 "Where is he? where did they take him?" cried Susie. Oh, grandma I must find Dobbin! There just be some way to get him back."
 Two men led old Dobbin in the direction of the railroad to ship him to the city with other live stock. Almost hysterical Susie was speedily dashing down the road.

At length she reached the railroad; yes, there was poor faithful Dobbin being led up a slanting platform to a car. Wildly Susie dashed after him. "Where are you taking our horse, our Dobbin?" she called, and then she sprang towards the animal clinging to his mane, kissing and caressing him.
 "We are simply doing our duty and shipping the horse as directed," declared one of the men, and Susie learned that the destination was the lively stable of a man named Arnold Drury in the city, and boldly declared she would remain with Dobbin until she saw this Mr. Drury, who could not but heed her story when she told it.
 There was a three hours' jolting, worried ride. When the train reached the city some new men proceeded to unload the car. Still Susie clung to old Dobbin. People stared as the procession passed down a street leading to a great lively stable. Susie learned that a gentleman in a house nearby was Mr. Drury. His wife and daughter were with him and before them all Susie told her story.
 "Little one," he said, jolting down the town where she lived and covertly wiping away a tear, "we will attend to all this speedily. Get the child something to eat," he directed his wife, and an hour later she was the companion of Susie, homeward bound, after giving directions for the immediate return of old Dobbin.
 That was not all, Mrs. Burton quivered with delight, as glancing into the yard the next morning there was Dobbin all ready in the shafts for an early trip, and Susie went her rounds singing happily.

The story of the old horse got about town and was the theme of many a fireside story amid interested home circles as the Christmas bells rang out. Kriss Kringle sent the loyal Susie a full girth of gifts, and peace and hope, and happiness hovered over the little humble Burton home.

A Holiday Romance

Two feet deep of snow. Why, it's a regular Christmas gift for me!" observed Rolfe Darlon hopefully, as he awoke from a night of profound slumber and glanced out through the street window of the chill bleak lodging house where he was one of wanderers who had no other home.

As he descended to the well-heated office room of the institution he paid little attention to the lounging crowd of idle and battered men. He paused only to address an old man with a pair of crutches by his side. He slapped him in a friendly, familiar way on the shoulder.
 "If I can only get a snow shovel," he observed, "I will see to it that your meals and lodging are well provided for over Christmas."
 "Bless you, my friend!" murmured the other gratefully. "You have been very kind to me," and Darlon left him with a genial goodby and started forth for a day of hard, earnest work.
 Darlon was passing some cottages adjoining one another when the door of the nearest one was opened and a pleasant faced lady beckoned to him.
 "You look as if you were seeking work," she said. "Would you clean up this sidewalk and a path to the coal shed for half a dollar?"
 By the end of an hour he had his task completed.
 "You must come in and share our lunch, if you will," invited the young lady, glancing to glance through the window he noticed in the next yard a young girl butting with the heavy snow with a frail broom.

Springing Free of the Roof.

 "She doesn't make much progress," he observed to his business. "If you will lend me your shovel I will soon clear a path around the house for her."
 He lifted his cap politely, explaining his purpose. Alice Brill young girl, content, best with a winning smile upon the friend in need. She turned a moment's thought that she could not afford to pay for the services offered.
 "You needn't worry about that," he declared lightly. "It was made me feel the better for doing a little act of kindness, so near to Christmas."
 Darlon regarded Alice Brill with more than ordinary interest. He had heard the girl and her father in the next house discussing their neighbor. It seems that the father of Alice had sold some store property in the town for over four thousand dollars, representing about all he had in the world. He had hidden it in his bedroom some one forced open the window and Brill awoke next morning to find his little fortune gone.
 Darlon worked sturdily at sidewalk and garden paths and had pretty nearly completed his task when Alice came out on the rear step.
 "I wonder if it would be too much to ask you to get the ladder and climb up to the kitchen roof and push off the massed snow there?"
 Darlon was only too glad to grant the request. He was pushing the last shovel of snow over the eave troughs when she startled Alice, who had come out again to watch the progress of his work, by springing free of the roof, waving a dark object in his hand.
 "I found it lodged in the gutter spout, where it must have fallen from the hand of the thief," he announced breathlessly. "It is a pocketbook filled with money."
 Just that it was, and Rolfe Darlon, a welcome spectator to the wild delight of the Brills, lingered long in the house, blessed by the gratitude of Mr. Brill and his beautiful daughter. What more natural than that they should invite this cherished guest to Christmas dinner, for a royal one they were sure of now, but Darlon surprised them and congratulated himself in appearing neat, trim and in a new suit, for at the lodging house that evening he found an unexpected letter from his estranged uncle containing a liberal remittance and asking him to return to the home-roof and forget that they had ever quarreled.

Merry Christmas, indeed it was for that little group, and when Rolfe Darlon bade Alice Brill good night after a day of rare enjoyment and happiness, he wondered if the ardent hope of his soul might become a reality before another yuletide celebration in his winning of a Christmas bride.
