If True, However, It Shows the Remarkable Subtlety of the Mind of the Oriental.

One ingenious if dishonest native of India turned his dark skin to excellent account. One of the European examiners of Calcutta university, says Lord Frederic Hamilton in his book "Days Before Yesterday," told me that there had been a great deal of trouble about the examination papers; by some means or other the native students always managed to obtain copies of the papers.

In spite of these precautions, however, it soon became clear at the examination that some of the students had a previous knowledge of the questions. How had they managed it? Eventually it appeared that the candidate, taking advantage of the momentary absence of the white printer, had whipped off his loin cloth, sat down on the "form" and then replaced his solitary garment. When he was obliged to strip on going out the printing ink did not show on his dark skin; and all that he had to do was to sit down on a large sheet of white paper for the questions to be printed off on it. Then, with the aid of a mirror, the students could easily read them. The oriental mind is subtle.

Positively Devastating.

WHEN 'SPECS' WERE NOVELTY

Many People Wore Them Because It Was Considered the Fashionable Thing to Do.

In the days when spectacles were introduced the world was not all wise. Glasses became so fashionable that people did not wait until necessity compelled them to adopt the new custom. Whether their eyesight was bad or good, those who would be stylish wore spectacles. In Spain they formed part of the costume of every well-dressed person.

The object of the wearer in putting on glasses was to increase the gravity of his appearance and render himself more directly imposing. A young monk, who had, through the assistance of his family, caused his order to succeed in an important lawsuit, felt himself liberally rewarded when the prior, having embraced him warmly, testified his gratitude by saying, "Brother, put on spectacles."

The glasses of spectacles were proportioned in size not to the eyes, but to the rank of the wearer; those worn by the Spanish nobles being as large as one's hand. The marquis of Astorga, viceroy of Naples after having had his bust sculptured in marble, particularly enjoyed the artist not to forget his beautiful spectacles.

Theology and Song.

Next to theology, I give to song the highest place and honor; and we see how David and all the saints have wrought their earthly thoughts into verse, rhyme, and song.—Luther.

ASH IS NOT GENUINE TEST

Merely Shows That Cigar is Well Made, Not That Its Quality is of the Highest.

Can the quality of a cigar be told by the ash? To a certain extent it can. Many smokers take a great delight in seeing how long the ash will stay on. It is often possible to smoke a big Havana cigar half or three-quarters way through with the ash intact.

But what most cigar smokers fail to realize is that this is the test of a well-manufactured cigar and not necessarily of the tobacco in it. It depends upon the length and neat arrangement of the filling leaf. A well-made, compact cigar has greater consistency than a loosely put together one. But it does not follow that the tobacco is better, a tobacco expert writes.

A surer test is when the ash is flicked off. The glowing point should be sharp. The sharper the point the better the cigar.

As regards the ash, it is a common fallacy that white ash is a sign of a fine, and dark ash the sign of an inferior, leaf. The real truth is that the color depends upon the strength of the tobacco.

A very mild and cheap cigar will give a pure white ash. The finest Havana of ripe strength produces a blackish ash. It does not follow that a cigar which burns imperfectly is bad tobacco. You may have lighted it badly or it may be clumsily made.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Long Day Coming.

The friction set up on the earth by the tidal drag is acting as a brake, causing the earth to turn more slowly, thereby increasing the day's length by one two-hundredth of a second in a century. The effect being eventually a day of 1,400 hours.
