Downers Grove, Ill., June 12, 1922. Regular meeting of the Council of the Village of Downers Grove, Ill. Present at roll call Mayor W. C. Barber and Commissioners Bryce, Haller and Heartt.

Minutes of the meeting of June 5, 1922 were read and Commissioner Haller moved to approve same. On roll call Commissioners Haller, Heartt, Bryce and Mayor Barber voted Aye. Nays none. Motion carried.

Collector's and Treasurer's reports for the month of May 1922 were read as follows:

COLLECTOR'S REPORT

To the Council of the Village of Downers Grove, Illinois, Gentlemen: The following is my report for the month of May, 1922.

Chas. M. Hitch, Village Collector.

SUNG HIS OWN COMPOSITIONS

Thomas Moore, Famous Irish Poet, Was Surely Exceptionally Endowed by Nature

Thomas Moore, Ireland's favorite minstrel poet, was born in County over a Dublin corner grocery in 1779 and died a baronet, the "poet of all classes and the darling of his own," the idol of two continents, in 1852.

For the last thirty years of his life he lived in a cottage at Shapton, near Drogheda, Wiltshire, where he devoted himself to all manner of literary efforts. His works include not only delightful short poems of "The Last Rose of Summer" type, but also poems to form a quarto volume, such as "The Book of the Dun Cow" (1807) and "The Irish Melodies" (1807-1835), and they include prose of all kinds, a series of humorous letters, biographies, and even a "History of Ireland."

Moore himself was a beautiful singer and rendered his own compositions often in public. It is related, after the tragic death of his daughter, he refused to sing publicly again. His daughter, the darling of his heart, was leaning over the tub during one night to throw a kiss to her father as he was going out to dine, when she lost her balance, fell and was killed.

The Last Rose of Summer is one of Moore's most exquisite compositions. It appears in a collection of "Irish Melodies," written for Percy's London music publisher, on a contract to supply a considerable number of songs for a volume entitled as above. The work was started in 1807 and was not completed till 1821. "The Last Rose of Summer," however, was among the early productions, and its influence easily more than 100 years old.

Pheasant Stopped Train

A pheasant stopped a Great Western railway express from London in an extraordinary way near Woburn. The brakes were suddenly applied, and the engineer was at a loss to know what had happened. It was not until he dismounted from the footplate and passed to the front of the locomotive that he discovered a dead pheasant. Presumably, the bird, flying across the front of the engine, had struck the pipes operating the air brake, which came into action, and caused the train to stop.

ISN'T IT A STRANGE THING—that the first thing a business man will do when his wife catches him kissing the maid; and starts an awful mull; and drags him into court for the judge to look over; and tells the judge what a soft old fool he is; and the size of his family; and of what her suspicions about him have always been; and everything — that his very first thought will be to rush to the Newspaper Office and try to keep the story out of print? The next day he turns down advertising with the argument that advertising doesn't advertise.

Build Your Home This Spring

Free yourself from the ever-present rent problem. Anyone who can pay rent can own a home. Don't wait until you have accumulated a lot of money before you build. By building now you not only provide a proper place for the raising of your family, but you are doing a service to the community by increasing the number of dwellings. High rents are brought about by the shortage of houses. When you move into your new home you release a home for the use of someone else. How much have you paid out in rent in the last two or three years? This rent money which you are now paying out will buy you a home and provide a profitable investment for you at the same time. BUILD NOW! Consult us freely in regard to your plans and we'll gladly furnish estimate on cost of materials and assist you in every way in our power.
