- 1.03 Photo Reproduction. St. George's Anglican Church. Photo gallery, By John McDonald. St. George's Anglican Church (or Church of England) was established as a parish in 1852 with Rev. Thomas Marsh appointed resident clergyman in that year. Services, however, had been held since the 1840's. By 1875 the congregation had grown to a size that make consideration of a new building a topic of discussion at meetings. In 1878 the lovely stone structure we know today was erected. It replaced a wooden frame building.

- 2.05 Clipping. H.T. Arnold and his family lived on Queen Street in Georgetown from 1906 to 1932. The lovely brick house, with Mansard roof, was erected in 1880 for the magnificent sum of $6,000 and Arnold bought it from Mr. Goodwillie who was a lawyer who began practising in Georgetown in 1876. It was known as Grandview House.
- 2.06 Clipping. A century ago. Acton Free Press, Thursday, December 26, 1878: "Georgetown Town Hall was formally opened on Friday evening, when the local Philharmonic Society gave its first concert before an audience of some four hundred persons. Short addresses were delivered by Hon. Wm. Macdougall, and Messrs. Wm. Barber of Streetsville, and Wm. Clay, of Norval. The hall is built of brick, with a fine tower, and situated on a rise of ground commanding a good view of the surrounding country. In the tower hangs a splendid bell, which is rung three times a day. The whole cost, including furnishings, chairs for seating, piano etc. will be upwards of $7,000.

2.07 Clipping. Even in oil-rich Alberta, Georgetown has a claim to fame. In the provincial museum in Edmonton, this early typewriter is on display. If you look closely you'll see the Creelman Brothers' name on it. They had a plant almost directly across the street from this office where they built machinery of all kinds, particularly knitting machines. The brothers started the business in 1872. It was closed in the early 1930's.

They also made a very popular home-knitting machine called a "Dollar machine". No, they weren't early counterfeiterers but the people made a dollar by knitting on them for commercial outlets.

- 10.01 Turning Back Time Series. Photo. Georgetown Public School Circa 1910. Children Play On The Grassy Playground of Georgetown public school in this old postcard photo taken about 1910. Note the absence of houses in the vicinity. The original building was erected in 1869, modelled after the Elizabeth St. school in Toronto. Two rooms were added in 1879, and a major addition was constructed in 1913. A final addition was appended in 1930. The school is still in service today although the name has been changed to Chapel St. Public school.

10.24 Chapel St. school sold to developer. September 20, 1978. The town will have no more chances to buy Chapel Street School following Halton Board of Education's decision to sell it to a local development firm. Thursday trustees voted to sell the building and 1.8 acres of land to Reed-Cooper Limited of Georgetown for $120,000. Three times since the school was closed in 1974 Halton Hills council considered purchasing the property but then backed out. Councillors had at different times considered using the land and school for library facilities, town offices and park land. Reed-Cooper outbid another tender for the property by $10,000. Tom Reed of Reed-Cooper said the firm has no plans for the property as yet. Earlier this year the board sold about half an acre of the property to St. John's United church for parking for $40,000. Chapel Street School is zoned R3, single family detached residential and is designated institutional in the official plan.

13.01.01 Volunteer Fire Brigade - 1893. Although Georgetown and area has been served by a fire brigade since about 1873, the Georgetown Fire Department was not formally organized until January 23, 1892. When this photograph was taken outside the "old town hall" in 1893, the brigade consisted of 30 men and fire fighting appliances consisted of two hose reels, a hook and ladder apparatus and 1,600 feet of 2 ½ inch hose. The brigade was organized by Harry Spiers who acted as first chief. Spiers operated The Canadian House Hotel on Mill Street, now known as the Arcade.
