

demonstrated making a bound button-hole and a stitched button-hole. Friendly Corners: demonstration by club girls and a talk on "Opportunities for Farm Girls." Purple Valley: Girls who had taken the club unit "Dressing up the Home Grown Vegetables" spoke on nutrition, menu planning, and the qualities of canned goods; and demonstrated making a tossed salad and vegetable garnishes. Moscow: The girls displayed night gowns, pyjamas and housecoats made in their club work—an outstanding program "because it showed the close co-operation between the Institute and the Girls' Homemaking Club." Bethel Zion: Homemaking girls demonstrated making tea and a salad plate and served refreshments of fancy sandwiches, relishes and cookies. There was a talk on Choosing a Vocation and a girl showed her exhibit on home beautification. Plainfield: Homemaking Club girls and their leaders demonstrated making tea biscuits and fruit cup and served them to the gathering. A girl gave a travelogue of her trip to the Four-H Club Congress in Chicago. Conn: Homemaking Club girls demonstrated things learned in their club unit "The Club Girl Entertains" and a woman spoke on "Teen-agers need models not critics." Bluevale: A special meeting when the homemaking club girls entertained their mothers and the Institute members. The girls demonstrated table-setting and serving and flower arrangement. The secretary reports "This meeting showed us what the girls are learning, their excellent work and pleasing manners and the efficiency of their leaders." Mitchell Square: Club girls demonstrated making muffins. The secretary reports "The spirit of appreciation was outstanding—the Institutes appreciation of the girls and the girls' appreciation of their leader."

Other home economics features given first place as the year's outstanding program are: Norval: a talk on Nutrition, the speaker using a foods chart, and a demonstration of salads—tossed, jellied and individual. The salads were later served with tea biscuits. Seaforth Junior Institute: a talk on glassware and silverware, stressing the importance of taking time in choosing these. Belgrave: a talk on Quilts and Their History. Kinloss Kairshea: a program including a demonstration on salads by leaders of the girls' homemaking clubs and five minute papers on Quantity Cooking, Shortcuts in Sewing, Household Hints and Correct Sauces for Meats. Williscroft: After talks on health and accidents everyone took part in a discussion on "How to improve health and prevent accidents." Tiverton: a meeting when the county home economist spoke on homemaking club work and a teacher of home economics discussed fabrics and synthetic goods. Tyrone: a talk and demonstration on old and modern fabrics by the county home economist. Wolfe Island: a talk on household art and a demonstration of "using stencils on furniture and drapes." Richmond Hill: After a paper on "Good Homemakers" eight members supplied their favorite supper dishes and everyone had a sample of each. Sandusk: a meeting preceded by a pot luck meal as a means of demonstrating supper dishes. The program following had good music, a contest and a singsong in addition to a topic and a motto. The report says "The atmosphere was one of relaxed and friendly enjoyment." Whiteman's Creek, also Harwood: A demonstration of flower arrangements. Majestic: the health and home economics meeting with papers on Mental Health and Fatigue. "As a result some members are practising what they heard, having relaxation periods and planning their work." Molly Creek: a demonstration on making flowers from nylon hose. Sarnia Juniors: a program on "Know Your Fabrics." Florence: the county home economist's talk on "Our Canadian Menu." Mississippi reports about their meeting observing National Health Week; "A dietitian guest speaker impressed the young mothers by her talk on food for a growing family and new members joined the Institute." Prospect Hill: a demonstration of sewing machine attachments. Riverview: an address on the manufacture and different types of china by a china shop owner. Seymour West: a member's demonstration on homemade rolls. Malton: a quiz on services available from the Department of Agriculture. Nephton: a program featuring family relationships. "Papers were given by two members, dealing with the parts father, mother and children should play in making a happy family life." Trent River: a program on "Literature in the Home." Dorking: the Young Mothers' Night when a doctor spoke on the care of children and answered the mothers' questions. Elmdale had a health talk by a child specialist. Living Springs reports: "The use of study kits from the Loan Library on Safety and Kitchen Improvement made the August and November meetings the most interesting." Haystack Bay's outstanding program was a lesson in smocking. Lakeview Parry Sound North: a program on handy gadgets for the kitchen.

W. I.

Programs on Agriculture and Canadian Industries were considered the most outstanding in a good number of branches. Several of these programs had to do with Conservation. Manotick had an address by the District Forester on the conservation of trees and the farm woodlot. Maple Grove in West Durham, a program which, we take it, was provided by the local forestry station, with speakers and the films "The Return of the Trees" and "The Three Bears Make Mischief." Pine Grove: a Conservation program with films shown by a member of the Moira Valley Conservation Committee. Grand Bend at their May meeting had a tree planting ceremony to mark coronation year, and a talk by "The Old Vet. Gardener" of Strathroy. Lion's Head: a program with papers on turning wasteland into grass, making money from Christmas trees, money from sugar beets and Newfound fish-