

ing to Canada's Food Rules." "Methods of cooking vegetables and meat have been changed to better methods."

The question "Do you think the people of your community can see in you any benefit from your experience in club work?" brought such replies as: "If you live in a small community everyone knows what's going on and they see how happy and busy we are." "Some girls get together and help those who are sick or in need and people see what we have learned and fall back on us." "In a small community it is noticed how you act and dress and your manners, especially if people have seen you before you entered club work and afterwards see how you have improved."

A typical reply to the question as to how a club girl can help new Canadian girls in the community was: "Help them to learn the English language and to understand their work in school. Encourage them to join the club. Introduce them to other boys and girls. Treat them as you would like to be treated. Have them join in other clubs and recreations. Make them feel wanted. We can learn from them, too."

The Banquet

Dr. C. D. Graham, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Ontario was guest speaker at the conference banquet.

Dr. Graham said that out of his experience as an agricultural representative he knew that many of the girls' parents had been members of short course classes and junior farmer associations in their youth, so the girls came from homes where there was an appreciation of the training acquired in club work. It was good to see the tradition carried on in the present generation. "We live in a country with a great future," said Dr. Graham. "We base this on our resources and our greatest resource is the quality of our people."

Dr. Graham illustrated his talk with stories of some types of club members. As an agricultural representative, he had called to see a boy who was a member of a calf club and found that the boy was away helping another boy who had been unable to get to all the club meetings. It hadn't mattered to the first boy that the other boy would be competing against him on Achievement Day. The family of a third boy in the club who spent most of his spare time around the corner store was very critical of the agricultural representative for spending time with the others.

Speaking of the opportunities there are for people right at their doors, Dr. Graham said: "You don't need to hold a big job to be a human success. More and more people are judged not by what they own but by what they do." And referring to the theme "The Club Girl In Today's World," the speaker said:

"This great citizenship of course holds responsibilities as well as privileges. There are two kinds of liberty: the false, where a man is free to do what he likes and the true where he is free to do what he ought to do. Show me the man or woman who has a realization of his place and responsibilities in his home and his community; there you have a great citizen."

Heather Ann Hutton of Peel county thanked Dr. Graham for his address and Deane Smith of Leeds thanked the College for the use of its facilities, for its hospitality and the staff members' contribution to the programme. At the closing session the next morning, Sylvia Chappel from Simcoe county thanked Miss Eadie and her staff for all their help and their directing of the conference.

Mrs. James Haggerty, President of the Federated Women's Institutes brought greetings, assuring the girls of her personal interest and the interest and pride of the Women's Institutes in the work that girls all over the province are doing in their 4-H Homemaking Clubs. Mrs. Haggerty did not say anything about her own experience as a club leader. This is just one more of her contributions to Institute interests over the years. Following the banquet Mrs. Haggerty was surrounded by a crowd of girls, some of them old friends from her own area.

A highlight of the banquet programme was provided by the choir, made up of all the conference girls, trained by Mr. Ralph Kidd accompanied by Mrs. Kidd, in a half hour or so at each session. Incidentally these singing periods were voted by the girls to be about the most enjoyable feature of the conference.
