Entrance Award winners. Students now attending University of Guelph, College of Family and Consumer Studies. (L-R) Dr. Janet Wardlaw, Dean of College, Barbara Livingston, Joan Patrick, Mary Atkinson, Karen Robinson, Brenda Bremner, Lois Lounsberg, Mrs. H. Noblitt, FWIO President.

Barbara Livingston, Perth

A graduate of Perth and District Collegiate Institute and at seventeen entered the University of Guelph in the four year course of Family and Consumer Studies, majoring in nutrition, Barbara hopes to get her degree and become a dietitian.

She enjoys sewing, cooking, swimming and snowmobiling. While at home she was involved in church activities and completed several 4-H Homemaking Club projects.

Mrs. Livingston is a past president of the Second Line of Drummond Women's Institute and has been a leader for 4-H Homemaking Clubs as well as the senior training schools.

Barbara feels that Women's Institutes with its variations, provides a variety of activities for young girls and homemakers alike and helps to draw communities, especially rural ones, closer together.

Miss Livingston says, "that the scholarships provided by the Women's Institutes of Ontario are one of the most worthy projects implemented by a voluntary organization."

Brenda Bremner, Bluevale

Brenda has completed 14 projects and feels this has taught her the practical homemaking skills and helps to foster a community spirit. "It gives one experience in interacting with other members of your community and a knowledge of skills that will help you throughout your life."

Mrs. Bremner is a 4-H Homemaking Club leader having lead for the last seven years and finds this interest involves her in Community life, which she otherwise would miss. A Women's Institute member for the last 24 years, gives her an opportunity to do organizational work which she enjoys.

Now that Brenda is at the University of Guelph she finds that her time is limited and her activity in sports and hobbies has been curtailed, however, she hopes to find time for swimming, sewing and collecting recipes for cooking.

Brenda has not decided what she will do after graduation, but one thing for sure, she hopes to remain a part of the rural community.

Lois Lounsbury, Smithville

Lois and her mother enjoy doing things together, both feel they have benefited doing things from 4-H Homemaking Club projects. Mrs. Lounsbury is a former Women's Institute member but now is a leader. Lois has completed 13 units and some of the favourite family dishes have been those made in 4-H.

She is attending the University of Guelph, enrolled in the Family and Consumer Studies program. Lois started with the idea of becoming a dietitian, however she has changed her mind and at the moment thinks of majoring in Family Studies with some nutrition courses. She feels the opportunities in this field have a wide scope for a career.

She makes most of her own clothes and with part-
