

equipped demonstration kitchen, as well as a committee room lined with cupboards for storage of musical scores, drama scripts and costumes, hats and wigs to be used for almost any presentation imaginable! And all supported and run by Surrey's 10,000 WI members.

We heard of NFWI's national driving competition sponsored by a motor company, of their national WI tennis championship, of their exhibition halls at the Royal Agricultural Show of England, as well as at fairs throughout the country, and of their nationally sponsored Flower Show at the Royal.

Their 75th anniversary slogan, printed with a new logo on new brochures, proclaims, "The WI-We're in" and goes on to describe the involvement of this vibrant organization's participation in the life of rural Britain.

With us, the British WI looks forward to 1997 and the celebration of the founding of the Women's Institute. For 1997 is not just Ontario's nor indeed, Canada's celebration.

Nine million members around the world will be joining us to recognize the contribution of this organization to country women everywhere. Our pride, our abilities, and the opportunities we present as we find ourselves in the centre stage spotlight during the next six years, present challenges to our provincial organization and to each of us as members.

We shall rise to the occasion.
