

our selves well repaid for our efforts, by the influence we will there by gain over our children, and the unity and companionship in the family circle.

It is said there can be no healthy thought without labor and no happy labor without thought, the two are inseperable.

Woman's duties are many, her possibilities even more. Her life must of necessity be a concession in little things, a continual sacrifice. Upon her Wisdom, Industry, Economy, Supervision, the Happiness and prosperity of the family depends.

What a responsibility and how few realize it. Two of the things which are very necessary in making the home cheerful and one of the secrets of successful management at home, is to control our temper and to take care not to upset any one else's.
