Come home to Belmore in 2005

Belmore is celebrating its 150th anniversary in 2005 with its first-ever Homecoming.

The community has quite an interesting history, event organizer Barry Mulvey. Looking at historical uments and news clippings, he said it's obvious Bel was intended to be a bigger town. It's well laid out grid of lots and roads. At one point it had three ho But there was no river to provide power for run mills, and the railway never went through Belmore.

What the community lacks in size it makes up fo heart, evidenced by events such as the annual m syrup festival.

Mulvey said Homecoming 2005 is an ambitious deavour for a small community. Volunteers have step forward to help, and more - a good many more - wi needed as the event draws closer.

Homecoming festivities kick off on Feb. 18, at the nual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. There'll dinner and dance, with music by Crippled Ducks.

The main festivities will take place Wednesday, 15, to Sunday, June 19.

The official opening is on the Wednesday, with a ety concert and local dignitaries.

On Thursday there'll be ball games. Kyle Wright, v organizing the sports side of the festivities, said a sp feature on the Thursday will be the Under 19 Austr national champions. Chris Wright, who has playe the Canadian championship Elmira team, will pla Friday.

Saturday is the big day with a parade, ball ho tournament, beef barbecue and a dance to Eddie an Edsels on the arena floor.

On Sunday, a special event is Bridal Fashions from Past, put on by the UCW and WMS, plus a chicken b cue and closing ceremonies.

There'll be breakfasts, a golf tournament (Frid Wingham), food booths, euchre tournament, y dance, car show, horseshoe tournament and much r
