

TRADITION

Bob, Melanie, Steven & Lisa Krupp

As recently as 1978, Forbes Market moved one more time to its present location at 751 Queen Street. In April of 1979, Bob and Melanie Krupp and their two young children moved to Kincardine to start out in a business with the same anxieties as Ike and Audrey Forbes had some 30 years ago. It is certainly a bigger store with more facilities to use but it still relies on you, the customer. Without community support, the "Family Tradition" would die. P.S. In conversation with Mr. Forbes not too long ago, he could not stress enough how grateful he is to all his loyal customers.

Texas balloon find nets Thompsons an invite to Amarillo, Texas

On Sept. 21 Harvie Thompson found a balloon on his farm which had been released from Caprock High School Homecoming, Amarillo, Texas on Sept. 19. Harvie received a reply this week saying that over 200 letters were received from as far away as Pennsylvania, Kansas, Iowa, Michigan, New York, West Virginia, Missouri, New Mexico, Illinois, Indiana, Oklahoma and Texas.

The letters were all read over the public address system. Each time the students were amazed and impressed at how far the balloons had travelled.

There are four high schools in Amarillo and Caprock has the smallest attendance.

With their letter, Wilda sent maps and a photo which were shown on their closed T.V. class news program. The maps were sent to their four geography classes and the teacher used them in a class lesson. An invitation was extended to Wilda and Harvie if they are ever down Texas way to call into Caprock High. They said so far, this had been the find farthest away!
