

Members thanked for local donations

BY MAXINE ZETTLER

Special to WHT

Eden-Grove Cargill Women's Institute met at the home of Maxine Zettler on Jan. 20 with 10 members present.

Marion Chesney opened the meeting with Mary Stewart Collect and the Opening Ode.

Linda Abell read the minutes of the last meeting as well as the correspondence with thank you cards coming from Walkerton Figure Skating Club and the Jantzen family.

Maxine Zettler gave the treasurer's report. Members named the Prime Minister the Year they were born as Roll Call. We discussed our December Christmas meal which was held on Dec. 1, at the Hanover Slots, everyone enjoyed the lovely meal and our gift exchange was a Christmas ornament.

All the members and their guests enjoyed the night out. We organized what each member is to bring at our February meeting for the Valentine boxes given to local people.

A draw was made for quilt squares which was won by Debbie Young. Everyone is eager to see what crafty art work she does with them.

Our guest speaker was Kara Kestner, a public health inspector. She gave a very interesting talk on her job and gave important tips such as why it is important to know how to read blue prints, water testing and told us that it is important to keep informed about any public functions regarding food.

A demonstration by five volunteers with hand washing was done, each one washing their hands for a different time with soap and water one with just water and one with gloves on.

Kara put a special light on the hands to show us that just water does not take the germs off, washing for a minute with soap and water was the best and we learned that you should always have clean washed hands before putting on gloves as the germs get on the outside while putting the gloves on.

Hand outs were given with more information. Everyone enjoyed her talk and she answered lots of questions.

Grace was sung by all members and a delicious lunch was served by Marion Chesney and Maxine Zettler.

Quilt tickets are still available from any W.I. member. Proceeds go to the Jantzen Children Fund. Draw is Feb. 13.

Members make Valentine boxes

The Eden Grove-Cargill Women's Institute met at the home of Debbie Young for its February meeting, with 13 members present.

Marion Chesney opened the meeting with the Mary Stewart collect and the opening ode. Linda Abell read the minutes of the last meeting as well as the correspondence. A Valentine card sent from Edna Zettler was also read and Karen Thompson Riley gave the treasurer's report.

For the roll call, members said what they did for their sweetheart that took him by surprise on Valentine's Day.

The group sent a sympathy card to Brian and Corinne Dayman.

All members then agreed the women will purchase a ticket with money going to support Ontario Agri-Food Education.

Following the meeting, members made Valentine boxes to distribute to local people. Grace was sung and a lunch served by Young and Carolyn Abell.

The group met at the home of Maxine Zettler Feb. 13 for the quilt draw and all those who bought a ticket were thanked. The winner of the quilt is Annabelle Wilhelm of Chepstow.
