From the foregoing, one may note that the mills of Arnprior were silent ruins. However, we glean that at the Madawaska bridge, now known as Burnstown, there was a grist mill of two runs of stones, run by water power from the Madawaska river, owned and operated by George Rochester, hailed from the United States; trade was principally custom work; but it was important. There passed through the mills in 1851, 7,456 bushels of wheat, 545 bushels of corn and peas. At White Lake there was also a Mr. John Paris, who emigrated from Scotland. He ran a grist mill, run by waterpower by the Waba Creek and ground in 1851, 5,281 bushels of wheat and 500 bushels of oats and corn.

This enterprising gentleman also had a woollen mill which carded in 1851, about 3,500 lbs. of wool. Nor was this all. His saw mill produced within the same period about 30,000 feet of boards.
