

A 24-year career as a shop teacher and band leader ended for Gordon Cayley, who retired this month from the Lucknow Central Public School. Many honors have been bestowed upon this man, the last of which took place Friday and Sunday. It wasn't a ticker tape parade, but it meant as much to staff and students at LCPS who took part in the parade down Lucknow's main street, with members of the Lucknow Concert Band, under the direction of Doug Clark leading the way. Mr. C. rode in style in a 1965 Ford convertible, owned and driven by Bruce Skillen. Acting as "body guard" for the celebrity were Michael Cranston (front) and Todd Thomas in the rear. Floyd Stanley, LCPS principal and teacher Bill McKeon lead the student procession. On Sunday a farewell tea was held at the school. (Pat Livingston photo)

June / 93

The Village of Lucknow hosted an official ribbon cutting ceremony last Saturday to mark the end of the $6.02 million sewage treatment works. Reeve Stuart Reavie (far right) shared the honor with, from the left, MPP Murray Elston, former councillors

George Anderson, Eldon Mann, Herb Clark, and Russell Whitby. Looking on from the back are Ed Sexsmith, Ministry of Environment project coordinator and Bruce Potter, B.M.Ross engineer. (Pat Livingston photo)