

Achieving them,
however, is not.

That is why in 1919 a group of women formed the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada. It was through this organization that they started working towards solving some of the problems that face women, their families, communities and country.