

GATHERS ONE TO TWO THOUSAND EGGS A DAY

Harold Poechman of RR 2, Walkerton, has a flock of 3600 pullets which started laying eggs about two weeks ago. With a flock this size, Mr. Poechman is able to gather about one or two thousand eggs a day. Unable to get a fair price from the egg grading stations, Mr. Poechman has resorted to giving the pigs on his farm an egg diet. Mr. Poechman said, "one egg grading station wouldn't even give me a price, while others offered from one to four cents a dozen. Twenty-five years ago, eggs at three cents a dozen, were considered cheap pig-food, so I've decided to use my eggs for the same purpose". - Staff Photo

EGG DIET

Pigs on the farm of Harold Poechman, Route 2, Walkerton, "never had it so good". When Mr. Poechman resorted to feeding them eggs, feed problems vanished. The pigs clamor for the eggs and when Mr. Poechman enters their pen
