Sutherland-Bradish

White bows marked the pews and red roses, white chrysanthemums and variegated pink carnations decorated St. Paul's Anglican Church in Southampton on May 2 when Diane Bradish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bradish became the bride of James Andrew Sutherland, son of Mrs. Helen Sutherland and the late John Sutherland. Reverend Wm. Cook solemnized the double-ring ceremony and Mrs. Doris Stelling was organist.

Given in marriage by her parents the bride chose an elegant gown in snow white polyester sheer. Her gown was designed with a sweetheart neckline, and long bishop sleeves. Daisy appliques imported from Belgium accented with tiny seed pearls decorated the front bodice, sleeves and skirt. Falling from the back of the empire waistline was a long chapel train trimmed with appliques of the same lace. Her Juliet caplet headdress held a two-tier fingertip veil trimmed around the edge with matching daisy trim. She carried her mother's white prayer book in a cascade of red roses, variegated pink mini carnations and baby's breath.

Leesa Bradish, cousin of the bride was maid-of-honour, Leanne Sutherland, sister of the groom, and Heather Porter were bridesmaids; Kim Bradish, sister of the bride was junior bridesmaid and Krista Caudle, cousin of the bride was flower girl. The bride's attendants were gowned alike in aqua angel crepe floor-length gowns. They carried bouquets of pink mini carnations, white daisies, red rose buds with baby's breath, and wore a pink rose in their hair.

The groom wore a sandstone tuxedo as did the best man Rejean Cyr, head usher Robert Owens and ushers Al Rayner and Roger McLelland.

The bride's mother welcomed guests for the reception at Port Elgin Legion hall wearing a silver blue Quiana knit gown with a pink rose corsage. She was assisted by the groom's mother wearing a deep coral polyester knit gown with a white rose corsage.

Kelli Caudle, cousin of the bride, in a blue floral dress with blue corsage acted as hostess as the guests signed the guest book.

A dance followed the reception.

Out-of-town guests were present from Emro, Elmwood, Wallenstein, Elmira, Lions Head, London, Lambeth, and Barrie.

Among the out-of-town guests were the bride's brothers, Dave Bradish and his fiancé Holly MacDonald and Dan Bradish, and his wife Shelly, all from Calgary, Alberta.

The couple will reside at R.R. 5, Paisley.
