

Daffodils for Mom

Daffodils were the call of the day at the Hug A Day Care in Port Elgin as children put their creative hats on and made bouquets of flowers for their parents. Four-year-old Andrew Berner would definitely receive a hug that day from a grateful mother for the bright and colorful flowers. Photo by C. Meingast

The Port Elgin Lions Club donated two bicycle rakes to the town last week thanks to the efforts of the community group and Doug Schlenkar for putting them together. Presenting the rakes were Sheila Lawrie, Orval McMillan and Cliff D'Lima. Photo by C. Meingast

1995

The heath and the heather of Gaelic tradition was abundant in Paisley Sunday night for the annual Robbie Burns night. Amidst the Scottish heritage backdrop of Paisley, Robbie Burns was celebrated in Gaelic tradition at Westminster Presbyterian Church. A-packed crowd was introduced to the sounds of Colin Hill of Chesley playing the pipes along with Scottish songs from Norm Dunsmoore of Kincardine. Hill, who is the pipe major of the Hanover Pipe Band, also piped in the highland dancers Peggy Clazie of Paisley and Kirstie Rose Kay of Port Elgin. Paisley's Alva Irving and Betty Clark of Walkerton kept the feet tapping to Scottish medleys accompanied by Helen Cumming on piano. Jim Butchart acted as master of ceremonies during the evening of entertainment followed by the traditional toast to the Haggis. Robbie Burns was a writer whose poems and songs brought him fame in all corners of Scotland and 1996 marks the 200th anniversary of his death.

Peggy Clazie of Paisley performing at the Robbie Burns performance.