Three Generations Span 117 Years In Newspaper Business

WILLIAM WESLEY

SON, ARTHUR WESLEY

GRANDSON, HAROLD WESLEY

The late William Wesley, a veteran newspaperman, was publisher of The Bruce Herald, in Walkerton, dating back to 1883. He was the dean of the Bruce County Printers' and Publishers' Association.

The late Arthur Wesley, widely noted publisher and editor since 1905, died in 1945. The retiring publisher and editor of The Walkerton Herald-Times, Harold Wesley, purchased the business from the J. A. Wesley estate in 1953, after having been associated with same for the previous twenty years.

The retiring publisher and editor Harold Wesley, at the age of six, is shown in front of The Herald-Times Office, in the year 1921.
