

HUBREY SCHOOL - 2

The reason the school is called "Hubrey" is rather interesting. The Hon. George W. Ross was giving a lecture here to a literary Society and among his remarks he told his hearers that this corner was the "Hub of Ontario" and so for the time the corner was known as "The Hub". Later a post office was formed there and the name "Hubrey" was given. However the post office is now at Wilton Grove. In 1892 at the World's Columbia Exposition held in Chicago, the Hubrey school had the distinction of carrying off the prize for a collection of freehand drawing and penmanship. The teacher was Miss Flora McColl and the school inspector who encouraged entering such an important exhibition was Dr. Dearness.

1964
HUBREY
SCHOOL

JUN 64

1947

- |          |   |                                       |                                      |  |   |
|----------|---|---------------------------------------|--------------------------------------|--|---|
| L. To R. | <sup>13th</sup> Shirley A. Sibbald | <sup>2nd</sup> Joanne Dale | <sup>3rd</sup> Donny Dale | <sup>4th</sup> John McLachlin | <sup>5th</sup> Ross McCorquodale |
|          | Lorie Johnson                                 | Anne Hockings                         | Dorothy Beattie                      | Jeanette Clarkson                        | Melvin Murray                               |
|          | Jackie Laidlaw                                | Kenneth Laidlaw                       | Allan Hockings                       | Lyllas Robinson                          | Glen Dale                                   |
|          | Robert Clarkson                               | Doug Robinson                         | Doug Boughner                        | Barbara Murrell                          | Donald Beattie                              |
|          | Ian Vertch                                    | Mary Laidlaw                          | Billie Donohue                       | Marilyn Beattie                          | Alice Mueller                               |
|          | Lloyd Boughner                                | Marion Noble                          | Joanne Robinson                      | Kenneth Beattie                          | Kathleen Pearson                            |
|          | Bernie Mueller                                |                                       | Bob Noble                            | Teacher - Mrs. Katie McCorquodale        |   |