

Roly Bird

If you could take a visitor to three places in Burlington, where would you take him or her?

Burlington's downtown, the waterfront, and the Royal Botanical Gardens are three areas that Mayor Roly Bird of Burlington would not want a visitor to miss. The Village

Square shopping area attracts many people because of its specialty shops, interesting boutiques, and restaurants, he says.

There are big plans for Burlington's waterfront which include a marina at Spenser Smith Park and a Great Lakes Science Interpretation Centre as well as designated areas for wind surfing and catamarans. If the Halton Region Waterfront Plan is implemented 35 to 40 million dollars will be spent on the waterfront in the next 15 years, says Mayor Bird.

And then there's the Royal Botanical Gardens. "I used to go as a kid and now I attend many receptions there. You can spend all day walking in the Gardens and along the trails," said the Mayor.
