The Burlington Cultural Centre

The centre is modeled after a similar facility in Denmark by architect John J. Harkness and features over 150 feet of display cases and more than 5,000 square feet of exhibition space. There is also courses in most every arts medium.

Its first major event this summer is an ambitious crafts show June 11 at 11 a.m. in Spencer Smith Park on the Lakeshore. About 100 craftsmen will be on hand. There will also be food and entertainment.

The centre will display until July 30 its permanent five-year collection of contemporary Canadian ceramic art. The sculpture Sudashi Inuzuka will be installed in the centre's central courtyard June 15.

Three shows will be exhibited in the centre from August 3 to September 10.

Steve Heinamman's "Of Nature" is an 11-year survey of his sculptures. The Latow Photograph Guild also showcases a juried exhibition. And the centre will display its Mail Art Project, an art exhibit made entirely from mail the centre has received.

The centre is located at 425 Brock Avenue, on Lakeshore Road, facing Lake Ontario between Brant Street and Maple Avenue in Burlington. The familiar red iron planks in front named "Rebecca" make the landmark easily recognizable. Or for more information call 632-7796.
