

in the many fields of Institute endeavour, she rendered invaluable and inestimable service.

Miss Powell has ever taken a keen interest in the uplift of her own community and for several years was a valued member of the School Board. Her many fine characteristics together with a mind well-developed, and enriched by many years of valuable experience, most admirably equip the author to write this instructive and authoritative book. No greater service could she render her fellow W. I. members, than to compile for their pleasure and benefit the comprehensive story of their beloved organization—which work she has most acceptably done. It will undoubtedly prove a joy and inspiration to its many readers, and I am sure all join with me in extending to Miss Powell, our sincere and grateful thanks.
