

Wire fences often have a strand of barbed wire across the top to discourage cattle from reaching over.

Dooryards, or Lawns, were often enclosed with a picket fence painted white