

In the tavernkeeper's parlor the wing chair and ten-plate stove are from Pennsylvania Moravian settlements; the tables and pottery are old Salem pieces.

The tavernkeeper's bed could be closed at night to keep out drafts. At free moments during daylight the keeper's wife worked at her crewl frame by the window.