Porter-Bridge

Heather Louise Bridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan D. Bridge, was united in marriage to Gordon Robert Porter on June 29 at Christ Church. The Venerable John Neal conducted the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white floor-length gown with the neckline and sleeves trimmed with bands of pearls. The front of the dress and the train were adorned with sequins and pearls. The maid of honor, Margaret Bridge, and the bridesmaid, Wendy Porter, wore royal blue floor-length dresses with long flowing sashes. They carried Casa Blanca lilies, English Lizzie, English ivy and bear grass.

The flautist for the wedding was Amy Porter.

The bridegroom was attended by Alan Porter while the guests were ushered by Ron Leeming and Terry Porter.

While leaving the church to attend the reception, the guests were greeted by the bride's mother who wore a soft green, silk crepe suit with gold accessories and a corsage of cream-colored orchids on a green setting. Assisting her was the bridegroom's mother in a floral print dress in shades of rose and green and a matching headpiece with cream accessories. Her corsage was cream
