

'the Screaming Avocado'

is coming to Brooksdale
and you're invited

Please come

The 'Screaming Avocado' is a hip culinary arts classroom-cum-restaurant where students from grades 10 to 12 learn to prepare, cook and serve everything from Mussels Puttanesca with fresh saffron noodles to braised rabbit in red wine and Muffuletta Sandwiches. Serving 200 meals/day, five days a week, the students make everything from scratch, using fresh, local ingredients. The fresh greens and heirloom vegetables come from the 3,000 square foot 'Seeds of Change' organic garden in the school courtyard.

Ladies, come and enjoy an ambitious meal prepared by high-school students and their teachers. The young protégés will serve you all under chef Finklestein and Elieff's watchful eye. Learn about the need for nutritional literacy for every student across the country, starting here in Brooksdale.
