

Above: It was a time to celebrate, and the musical entertainment was great at the gala performances.

Right: A motley crew, these ENSS students made sure that guests for the Saturday Gala were well served. From left: Jamie House, Billy Seguire, Katie Jones, Michelle Barker and Morgan Stykel.

The perfect dress to entertain: Brandon Stacey was one of the servers decked out for the Saturday Gala.

E.N.S.S. REUNION

High school reunion draws alumni from near and far

The gym inside the main entrance to ENSS was a busy place last Friday afternoon and evening as hundreds of people registered for the school's 50th anniversary reunion weekend.

The same room offered a huge display of memorabilia.

Those who attended the official opening of the East Northumberland Secondary School time capsule Friday morning found themselves vaulted back to 25 years ago.

While the contents focussed on the school, they also represented all aspects of the community, with copies of local newspapers of the day, a map of the area as it existed in 1980, school records, staff lists, photographs, arts, sports and scholastic achievement and activity memorabilia and more.

In July of 1980, the school underwent a name change to its present title of East Northumberland Secondary School, so the reunion of that year was listed by Brighton native and Trentonian reporter the late Casey Corbett as "a reunion and rededication." The surprisingly large stainless steel box was almost jammed full of photos, documents, banners, posters and more.
