LIONEL TESKEY

Sapper

Trained in demolition and working with Bailey bridging in England, Italy, France and Holland with 4th Field Company Engineers, 1st Canadian Divisions. Liberation of Holland. Bailey bridging was creating bridges by assembling floating class 9 boat bridges built on buoys. Two boats to a buoy. One of these Bailey bridges measured over 115 foot span to cross the IJssel River in Holland. This was accomplished under heavy enemy fire in record time of 1 hour and 20 minutes. Convoys of infantry, tanks, artillery, etc. were able to cross bridge defeating a huge pocket of German Army.
