

SERVICE: Legion thanks members for contributions

Photo by Marlene Harnden

John Fox, right, was announced at the Legionnaire of the Year at Colborne Branch 187 May 3. The award was presented by branch president Patti May, right, with branch honours and awards committee chair Faye Wile behind.

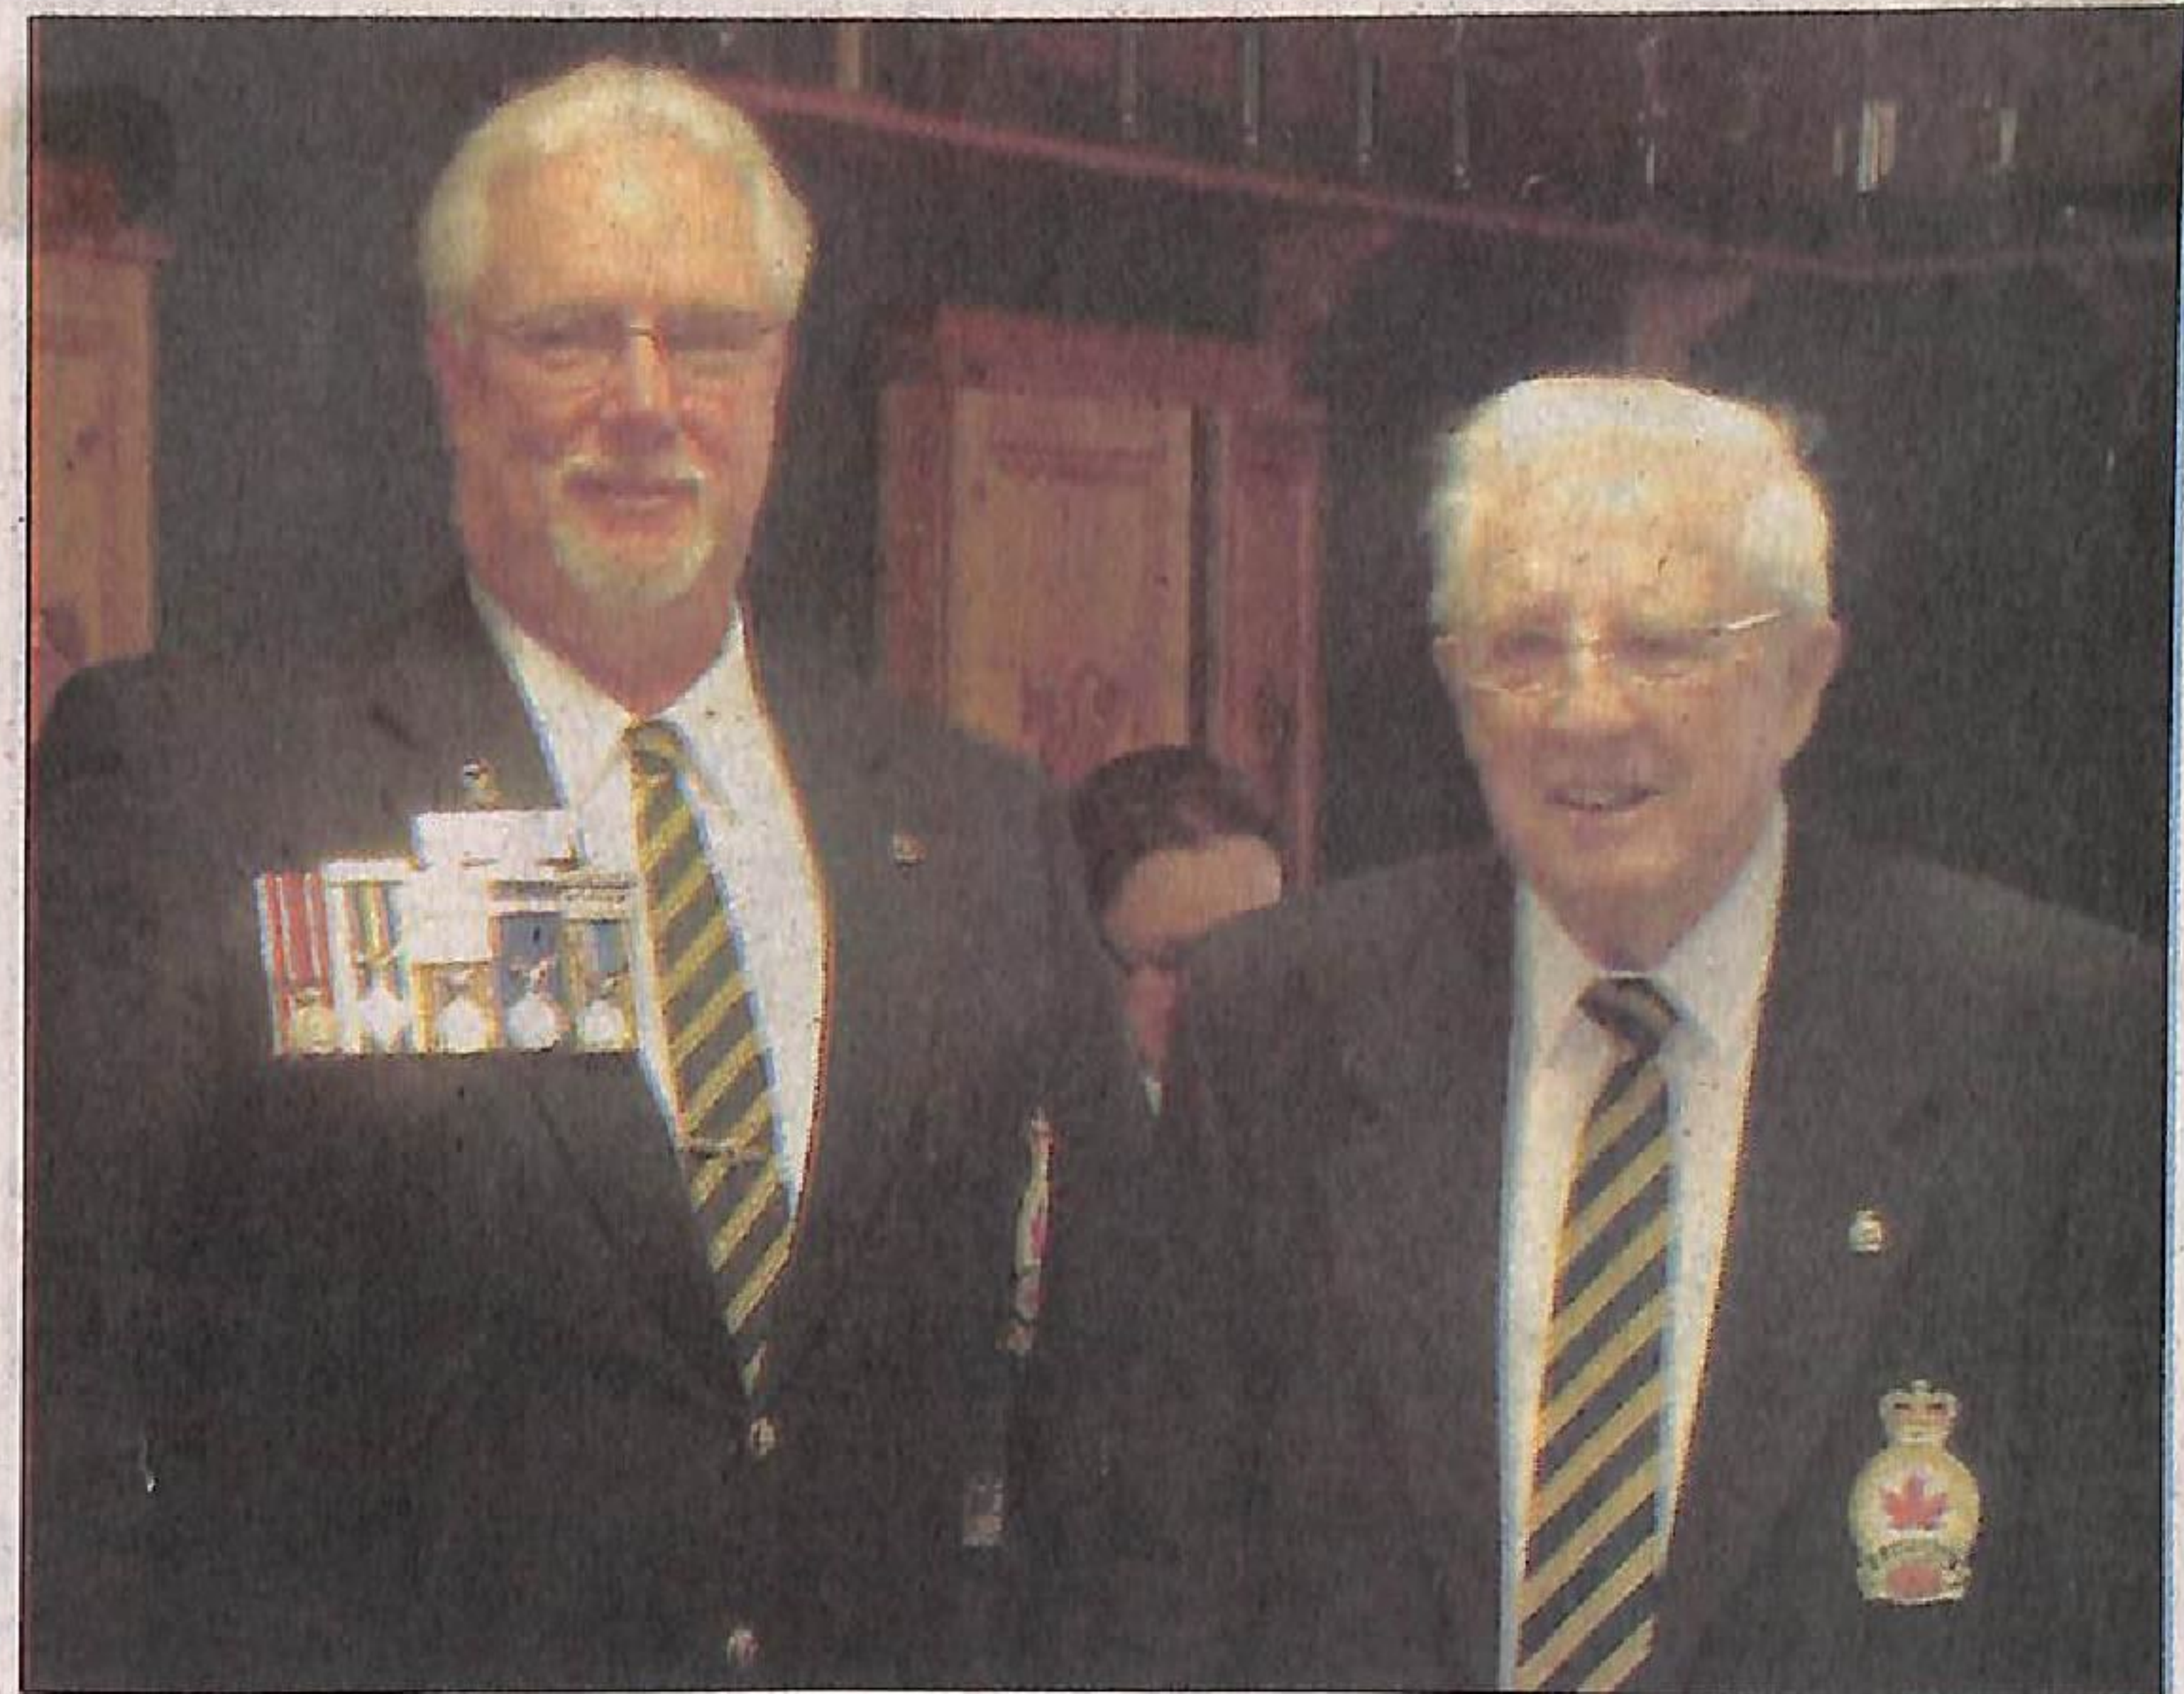

Photo by Marlene Harnden

Art Jackson, right, of Castleton, was presented with his 45-year Royal Canadian Legion service pin by Zone F2 Commander-elect Greg Kobold at the annual Colborne Legion honours and awards reception May 3.

NORTHUMBERLAND TODAY MAY 8/09

Colborne Legion presents honours, awards

MANDY MARTIN

mmartin@northumberlandtoday.com

It's an honour that comes from the heart. Annually, the Charles Bugg Award is presented to the member of Colborne's Royal Canadian Legion Branch 187 for outstanding contributions while upholding Legion objectives.

Selected by the branch president, the winner is a well-kept secret until the annual honours and awards reception. On May 3, this year's top legionnaire of the year was awarded to John Fox.

"This year's recipient has exemplified the meaning of service and volunteerism," branch president Patti May said.

"I'm not even sure that, if I was to give you a list of the various projects, duties, jobs that he has applied himself to, that it would be complete.

Photo by Marlene Harnden

Among those receiving certificates of appreciation at the May 3 annual honours and awards reception at Colborne Legion Branch 187 were: (front, from left) Marlene Harnden, Louie Micieli, Jim Mills, Linda Pettibone, Ruth White, Jim White and Ira Wile; (back) John Fox, John Kripp, Gord MacDonald, Patti May, Faye Wile, Pam Taylor, Bill Bachellier, and Shaun Godfrey. For a complete list, see article.

see pg 2