

Music program gets a boost

NORTHUMBERLAND TODAY DEC. 27/12

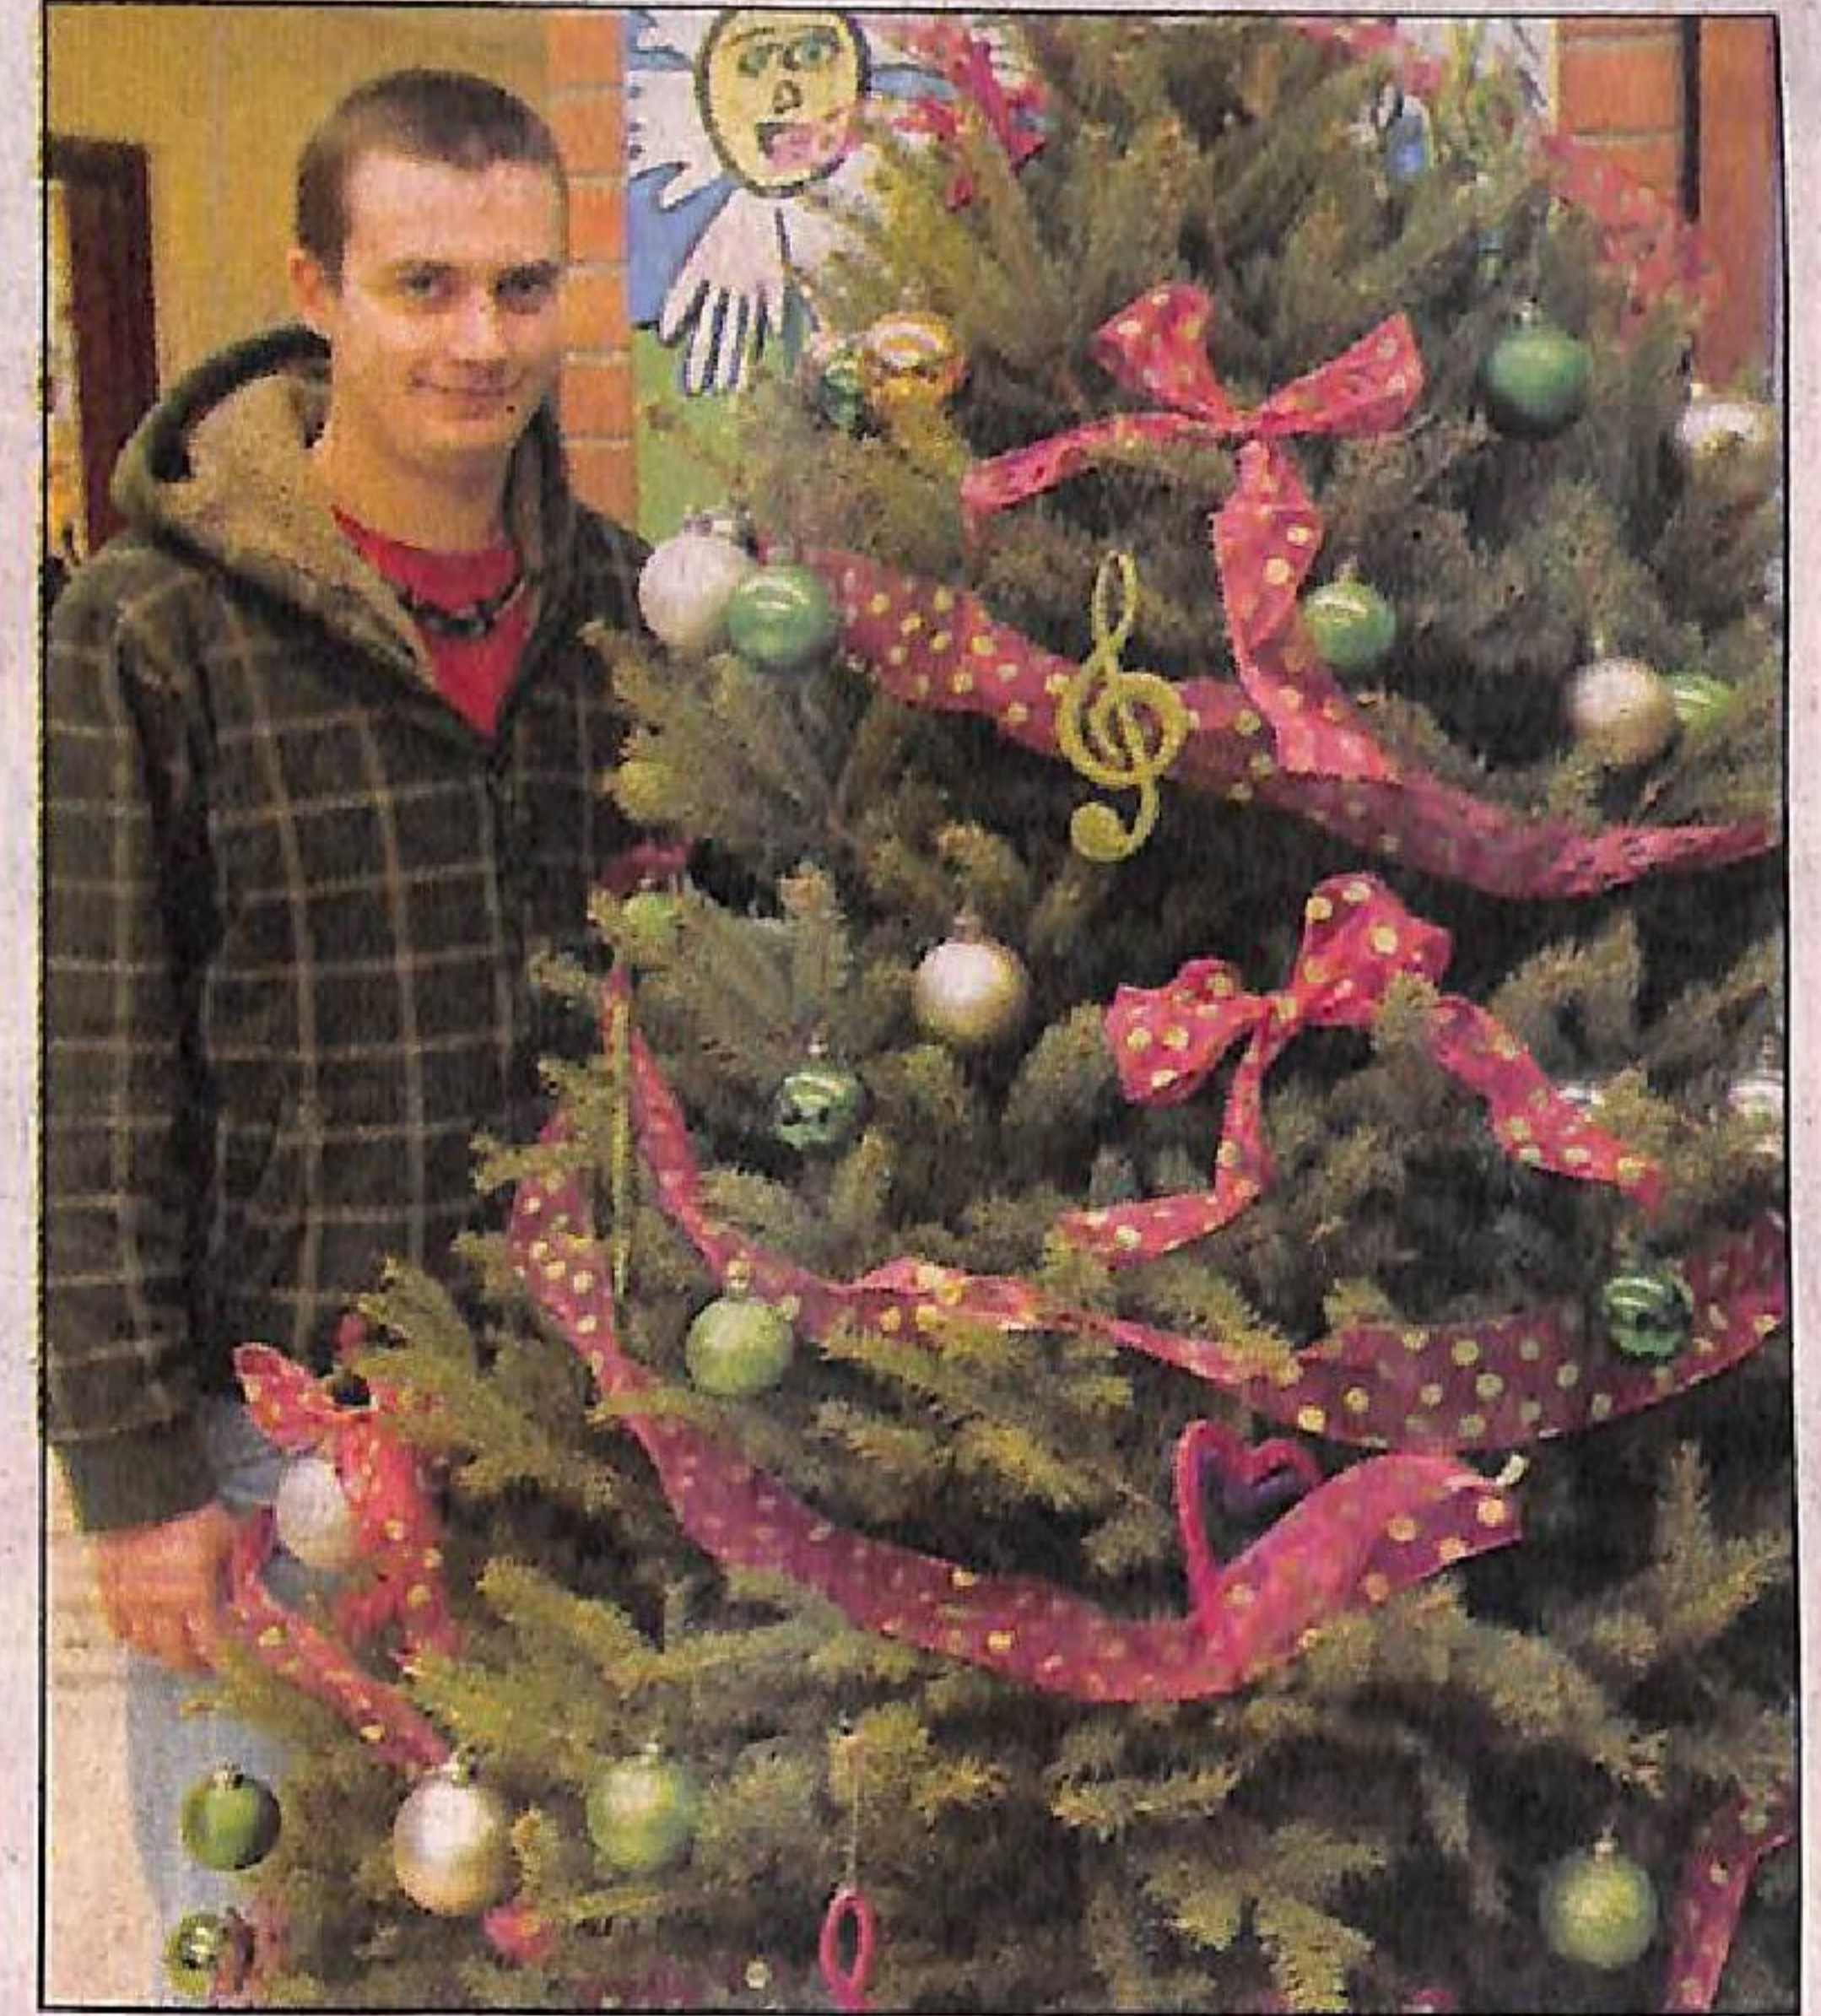

PETE FISHER
Northumberland Today

COLBORNE — The Festival of Trees managed to raise over $11,000 this year and approximately $30,000 over the past three years for Colborne Public School's music program. The program is entirely self-funded.

Colborne Public School teacher, Chad Morford, who started the Festival of Trees, said organizers are extremely grateful to everyone who helped out including the Memorial Tree sponsors: RBC, Cam Tran, HD apply, Tim Horton's, Canadian Tire, and MacCoubrey Funeral Home.

Photos by Pete Fisher
Northumberland Today

Julie Robertson won the
Lizzy Ferguson Memorial
Christmas tree. Ferguson is
Linda Derry's grandmother.

Tom Wilson won Kandas Derry Memorial tree. Wilson went to school with Kandas.

Linda Powers won the Lizzy Corbeil Memorial Christmas tree and donated it to the school so they could have a Christmas tree in the foyer.

The 30K in 30 days campaign is asking those who have not yet made a donation to do so now and for those who have already given to please consider increasing their donation. Campaign Co-Chairs Mark Holmes and Peter Dounoukos have pledged the strong support of their newspapers, Northumberland Today and