■ MUSIC: Labour Day weekend tradition continues

at Shelter Valley Folk Festival

NORTHUMBERLAND TODAY MAY 8/14

NORTHUMBERLAND - This year's Shelter Valley Folk Festival will feature performers requested on the group's surveys, artistic director Carolyn Sutherland said this week.

The annual Labour Day weekend festival will include such entertainers as Cape Breton fiddler Ashley MacIsaac and Joel Plaskett.

Other performers already confirmed are Danny Michel, De Temps Antans, Ennis,

at Shelter Valley Folk Festival

Laura Smith, Leela Gilday, NQ Arbuckle, Patricia Cano, Sherman Downey & The Ambiguous Case, and The Seasons.

Details about the performers with links to their music can be found at www.sheltervalley.com. Festival organizers also launched the annual Early Bird ticket sales this week, offering weekend passes at the best rate.

The Shelter Valley Folk Festival is also looking for songwriters for its annual Local Songwriters Showcase held at the end of July in Downtown Cobourg. Three finalists are chosen to perform at the festival.

"The showcase is about songwriting and it's for all ages so we encouraging everyone to tell writers they know to visit www.sheltervalley.com for more info."

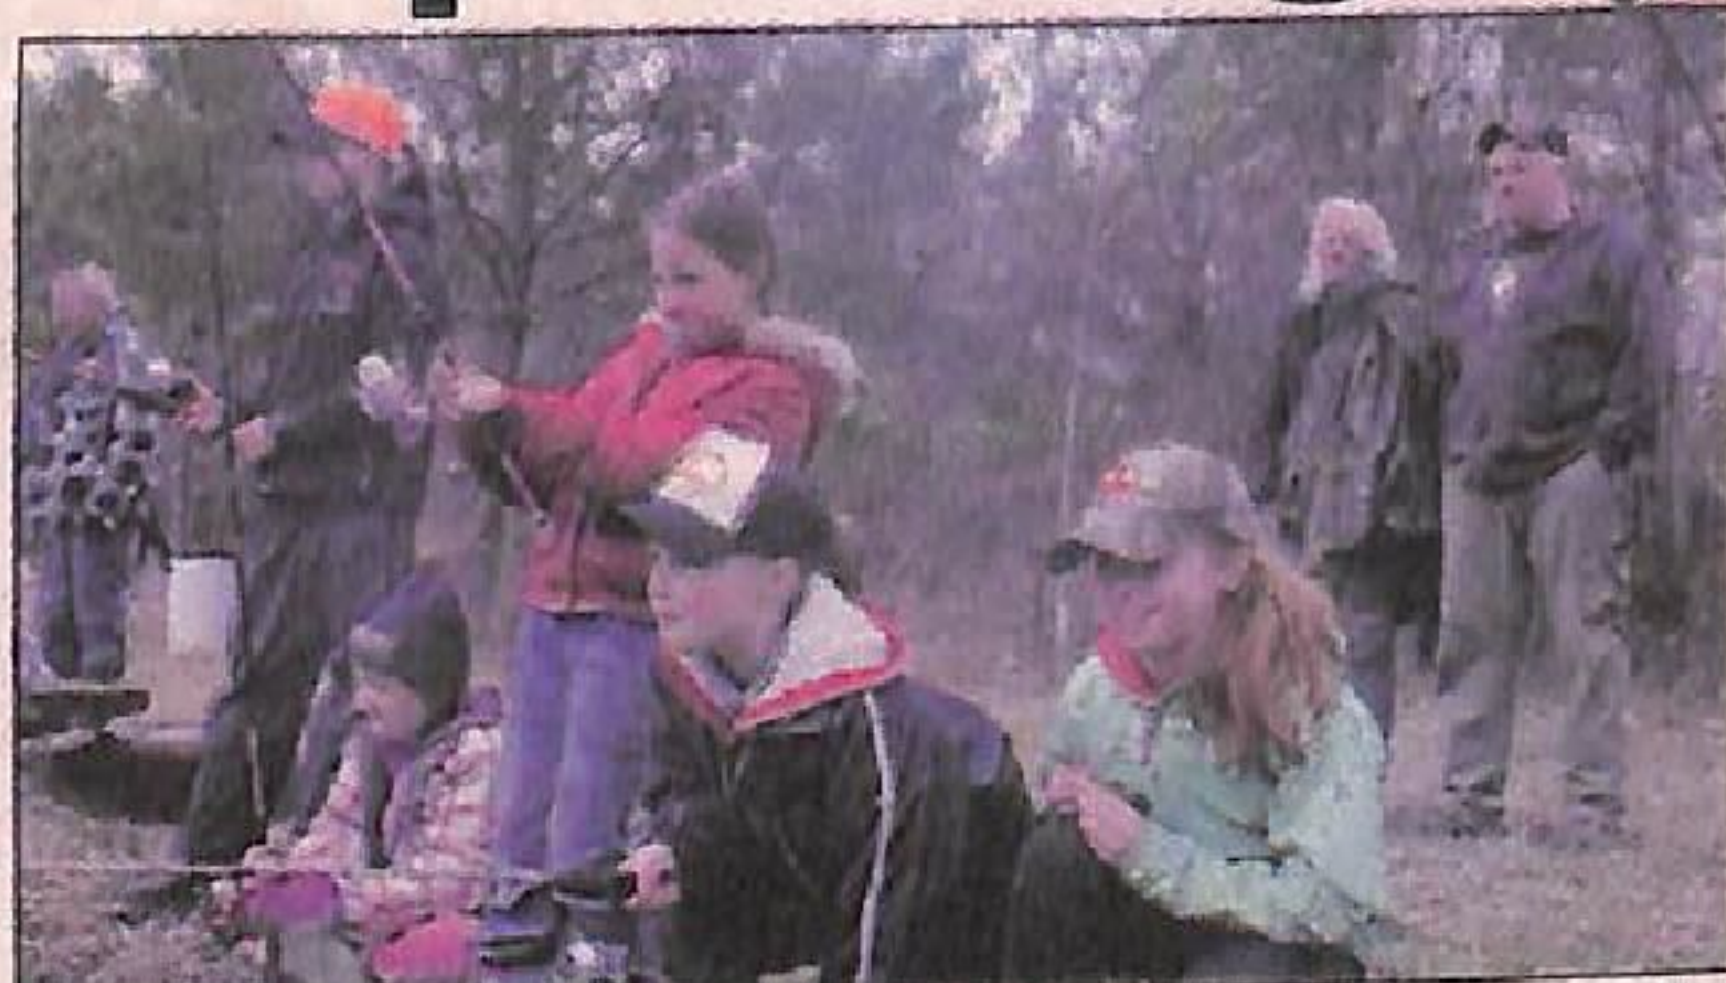

Sutherland states in a press release.

The festival is seeking applications from artisans for its 'juried artists' village, along with wellness practitioners and sustainability instructors. This year's festival is scheduled for Aug. 29 to 31.

The fish kept biting
