

V The ditch digging completed, and the lengths of pipe laying alongside waiting the next operation. The pipes have been marked by the engineers to be shaped in various angles by the approaching pipe bending crew.

VI One of many of the large bulldozers used to move the sections of pipe to and from the pipe bending machine. While watching this operation a race developed between two bulldozer operators and the man approaching from the left proved to be the winner, as can be seen in the next picture.
