

During World War I, Brighton Branch, did much Red Cross work. After November 1918, the year the war ended, there was not the need for Red Cross supplies. Since the Institute was primarily a rural organization, it was evident that the interest of Brighton Village members, was waning, attendance was small at regular meetings, therefore it was decided to disband.

The enclosed clipping was given us by Miss Lois Morgan, chairman; her mother Mrs. Arthur Morgan is a valued member of Community Institute.
