

MAIL CARRIERS

To introduce the many noble men who served as mail couriers, under the Civil Service Act, we would like to quote this poem of glossary, taken from an old scrap book.

Mail Carrier Salute.

Through shining sun or pounding rain,
Through fogs or smogs or snows,
Bearing his enormous pack;
The dauntless postman goes.

The dogs announce him one by one,
Along his beaten way,
Children run with open hands,
Women nod, "Good-day".

Persistently from house to house
With his habitual grin,
He plods with bills and ads and cards
With letters thick and thin.

There he leaves a tear of joy,
There - a star of hope,
And down the street - a lover's heart
Sealed in an envelope.
