

SOME INTERESTING FACTS:

It's interesting that this house was once owned, moved and added on to by one Maki and bought, moved and added on to by another Maki of no relation.

In the spring of 1968, Richard and I and our daughter, Kim went to visit Sherry and Reino Maki with the possibility of purchasing this house. It was tempting to live in the house with such an interesting story and one that Pappa and Dad had built, but I really didn't want to be in a subdivision.

Now years later I find that Arne Niemi who placed the house on its foundation was my husband's uncle through marriage. He was Elsie Johnson's sister's husband.

It's interesting that Herman Maki has a grandson named Kevin Maki and Reino's son Kevin Maki lived in the house.

In order to move the house Sherry and Reino Maki had to have a special permit from North Bay. The girl who made out the permits was Terry Saari, Reino's childhood neighbour from Mattawa. She had enclosed a personal note along with the moving permit.
