New Ross Mineview principal

Ross Mineview School at Haley Station has a new principal this year.

Carolyn Burwell just arrived at Ross Mineview from Bells Corners Public School where she acted as vice principal for two years.

In her new position, Mrs. Burwell handles administrative duties and teaches language arts to grades 7 and 8 four mornings each week.

She has a total of 164 students in the school and works with a staff of ten instructors, five of whom are part time.

Previously, Mrs. Burwell worked at the Regional Media Centre, serving both public and separate boards of education in the Carleton and Ottawa systems. There, Mrs. Burwell looked after films, video equipment and workshop for teachers who used the "media" equipment.

She brings with her to Ross Mineview, a wealth of knowledge in the field of education.

After 18 years in the field, she decided it was necessary to look outside the Ottawa area for a promotion, due to the ever decreasing numbers of students in schools.

Mrs. Burwell is looking forward to settling into either Cobden or Renfrew, but currently, she is commuting to and from her home near Ottawa.
