

Home and School Provides the Opportunity for

1 PARENTS

- C O - O P E R A T I O N
to meet regularly in the school to become acquainted with the Principal and teachers.
- to understand more fully approved teaching methods and the scope of education today.
- to learn and understand the teacher's position.
- to become acquainted with the physical aspects of the school.
- L E A R N I N G
to learn (through programmes, study groups, pamphlets and books) more about children's growth and development.
- for training in leadership.
- to share the experiences of other parents with the same concerns.
- to learn, in joint studies with members of the staff, the best procedures for the effective guidance of young people.

A Home and School association provides the best means of bringing the teachers and parents into working partnership

Home and School Provides the Opportunity for

2 PRINCIPALS and TEACHERS

- U N D E R S T A N D I N G to meet the parents, thus gaining a new insight into the factors that make each individual child what he is.
- to interpret the school to the parents and to the public.
- to give information regarding teaching methods and goals.
- to win the confidence of their community and establish good public relations.
- to work with the parents to develop the full potential of each child.

3 THE COMMUNITY

- A to arouse community interest in education.
- C create public opinion regarding the needs of children.
- T to co-operate with other groups.
- I to help every child develop those physical, mental, social and spiritual qualities which will enable him to become a responsible citizen.
- N to stimulate community action.