1987 • oil on canvas • 48" x 32"

Growing up on the edge of Lake Nipissing, the lake has always been magic and has often served as the background in my paintings. This painting celebrates one of those very rare occasions when the lake freezes flat and there is no snow for several weeks at the beginning of winter. The children date back to my own youth: the little girl, wearing the brown one-piece snowsuit, and the boy in fashionable turned down rubber boots. And the dog, well there was always a dog.
